ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

First and foremost, all gratitude is due to Allah, my Lord, for giving me the strength, care, and health to accomplish my Ph. D project.

I am profoundly grateful to Dr. T. Samson for his invaluable help and supervision. He was not only an endless source of knowledge; he was also kind, patient, and understanding. It was in close consultation with him that I chose my topic, wrote my proposal, and subsequently my dissertation. Working with him has been an enriching and gratifying experience since he has opened many new avenues of thought for me.

I would like to thank Dr. Rajiv Krishnan, Head of the Department of English Literature, School of English Literary Studies for his continuous cooperation with all scholars. My sincere thanks are also due to all the teaching staff members of the Department who have guided me through my Ph. D course-works. I am also grateful to the administration and staff of the EFLU for all the cooperation and support.

I must acknowledge my gratitude to the University Grant Commission for awarding me a scholarship which really made my life in India more enjoyable.

My deepest thanks go to Dr. Abdullah Aziz who reviewed, emended and amended my translations of the Arabic poetic extracts used in this thesis.

I am indeed grateful to my close friend Dr. Mohammed Hussein Al-Anisi who always stands by me in my hard times. I cannot forget his constant assistance and valuable advises during my stay in Hyderabad.
I spent wonderful and unforgettable days with my dear friend Abdullah Khalil in Tagore International Hostel. He was so kind, generous and helpful. Words cannot express my gratitude to this gentle man. Dr. Nagm-Addin Saif also deserves special thanks.

I am heartily thankful to Dr. Mohammed Qarabesh, Dr. Mohammed Muharram, Dr. Ali Shahra and Mohammed Al-humaidi who were a source of inspiration and encouragement.

I would like to thank Fawwaz An-nashef, Abdulaqadir Al-Emad, Mansour Sarhan, Armeen Al-
Ahdal, Majed Musa’ad, Abdurrahman Al-Ahdal, Hesham Al-Mekhlafi, Rafeeq Al-Eriyani, Sameer Al-Samadi, Fawwaz Rajeh and all my colleagues at EFL University. I extend my thanks to all my friends in Hyderabad who could not be mentioned in this brief acknowledgement.

To my father and mother I owe special thanks for their love, patience, affection, and sincere prayers. Special thanks go to my dear sisters. I am wholeheartedly grateful to my brother Khalid.
It is certain that without his encouragement and support I would not have achieved this project.

Finally, my wife deserves a very special note of gratitude for her tireless assistance, unparalleled patience, and unwavering faith.
