ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

The completion of this thesis would not have been possible without the support and guidance of many people. Firstly, I would like to thank my doctoral supervisor, my Teacher, Prof. (Dr) Nilanjana Sanyal, whose supportiveness and insight has shaped me throughout my Ph.D work. Ma’m, you have been a wonderful mentor and your guidance during this process has been precious. I am blessed to have you as my supervisor.

I am grateful to S.B Sir (Dr. Saugata Basu) who was my research guide. It was Sir who motivated me to continue this topic and believed in me even when I felt to change the topic.

I would also like to thank the psychiatrists, Dr. Abir Mukherjee, Dr. J.R.Ram for their help in referring cases for the study. My sincere thank to Shuvabroto Poddar for helpful suggestions regarding statistical analyses.

I would like to express my thanks and appreciation to families who participated in the study. Without their generosity and willingness to participate this study would not have been possible.

I am very grateful for the love and support of my parents, my in-laws, my brother and my husband – their patience and encouragements has been a constant source of motivation for me.

It is also important to mention that this research was made possible by the support of the Faculty Development Programme (XIIth Plan), U.G.C
