Bibliography

Bruce A. Babcock  Creation of a WTO-Friendly Farm Safety Net
http://www.card.iastate.edu/iowa_ag_review/fall_04/article1.aspx
(visited 1 December 2007)

Journal of Economics, 278-300.

Centad (2007). Report of the South Asian Conference on Trade and Development 2007, Harnessing Gains from Trade: Domestic Challenges and Beyond, Centre for Trade & Development, January

in Agricultural Systems in South Asia”, www.centad.org/events_12.asp

Chand, R. (2005). India’s Agricultural Challenges: Reflections on Policy, Technology and other issue. New Delhi: Centad.

Chand, R and Philip, Linu Mathew. (2001).Subsidies and Support in Agriculture: Is WTO providing level playing field?” Economic and Political Weekly Vol. XXXVI (32) August11-17,2001

Chand, R., & Raju, S. S. (2009). Instability in Indian Agriculture
During Different phases of Technology and Policy. New Delhi:
National Centre for Agricultural Economics and Policy Research.

Chandra, S. (2009, June). Social and Attitudinal Change in Medieval India Thirteenth-Seventeenth Century. Indian Historical Review, 36(1), 23-35.

WTO NAMA negotiations could deny developing rights to future.
Geneva: South Centre.

Dorosh, P. 2001. 'Trade Liberalization and National Food Security: Rice Trade between Bangladesh and India'. World Development. Vol. 29, No. 4;

Kumar, P. (2005). Food Production and Demand by State and Region in India. New Delhi: Division of Agricultural Economics IARI.

Lim, D. Export Instability, Economic Growth and IMF compensatory Financing Facility: A Report for the FAO, Rome

