Acknowledgements

In this long journey there are many individuals, whom I owe my gratitude. First and foremost I am highly indebted to my supervisor Prof. Mridula Mukherjee for her constant guidance provided to me at various stages of this thesis. Her comments and suggestions have helped me to look keenly and objectively into my sources and present them with honesty without any prejudice or fear. She helped me sustain a sense of optimism and hope at most difficult times by her unflinching faith in my ability to accomplish the task. I consider myself fortunate to have such an eminent scholar as well as warm, affectionate and encouraging supervisor as Prof. Mridula Mukherjee.

I owe a deep sense of gratitude to Prof. Bipan Chandra who suggested me this topic and opened up a vast horizon of unexplored historical themes of these “fateful Years” to me. His lectures at CHS on Indian National Movement with various examples from the stories of Premchand evoked a special interest to study the grassroots’ participation.

My teachers at the Centre for Historical Studies shaped my understanding through their lectures. In particular I wish to acknowledge with gratitude the contributions of Professors Harbans Mukhiya, K.N. Panikkar, Sabhayasachi Battacharya and Aditya Mukherjee. A very special thanks is due to Mrs. Vijaya Joshi, the Marathi teacher at CHS whose classes helped me to read my Marathi sources.

I am thankful to my seniors and friends at Jawaharlal Nehru University, Sucheta Mahajan and Bodh Prakash, Vishlakshi Menon and Antony Thomas, Salil Misra, Neeraja Singh, Bhupinder Yadav, Shashi Bhushan Upadhyay, Lata Singh and Rakesh Batabyal, for their support, appreciation and guidance. I am grateful to Bodh Prakash and Sucheta Mahajan for their helpful and consencious reading of the final draft and valuable suggestions. Visha was always supportive and helped me in innumerable ways. I am thankful to Mahalakshmi and Rakesh for their warmth and hospitality.
The College of Vocational Studies (CVS) granted me three year’s study leave for my research. I am grateful to the then Principal. I am deeply touched by the concern that Natasha had for the completion of my research. I am thankful to my friends Geetha, Meenakshi, Purabi and Shalini for their support.

I would like to thank the directors, librarians and staff of the Nehru Memorial Museum and Library at Teen Murti, the National Archives of India, the Central Secretariat Library, the Joshi Archives, the Jawaharlal Nehru University Library, Dr. Devahuti’s Library and the College of Vocational Studies Library at New Delhi for providing me with the facilities to conduct research. I am grateful to the authorities and staff of the Madhya Pradesh State Archives, the Madhya Pradesh Secretariat Record Room and Library and the Gazetteers State Unit Library at Bhopal for their help and cooperation. In Nagpur, I am specially thankful to the family of Shri R.S. Ruiker for giving precious information about Ruiker and other freedom fighters. I am also grateful to the villagers of Chimur and Ashti who enthusiastically took me around in these two villages and narrated the events of 1942. I am thankful to Shri Hari Thakur for providing useful insights about various aspects of the national movement in the Raipur district.

In the course of this long journey I lost many dear ones whose presence I would have cherished at this hour. It is a matter of great regret that my grandparents were not able to see this work finished. Through their stories, experiences and remembrances of the freedom struggle I was fascinated to the Indian National Movement. They would have been very proud to see this work completed.

My parents-in-law, Late Shri Ramnath Malhotra and late Smt. Sulochana Malhotra have enriched my life with their pleasant and sweet memories even in a short span of time. I believe, their blessings are always with me. My masi, Kamala helped me in her silent ways. Without her help this work simply would not have been possible. She looked after my little daughter when I was searching for the sources at the archives, record rooms and libraries. The untimely death of my parents-in-law and my masi has taken away much of the joy of this accomplishment.
Among those, who have provided me with their affection and friendship over the years, I would particularly like to thank my sister-in-law, Urekha Batra and Shanti Swaroop Batra. Kanika and Sarthak always provided the much needed respite. Smt. Kamala and Shri. Om Prakash Malhotra, Smt. Manju and Shri. Deepak Malhotra have always provided their generous emotional support.

I am highly indebted to my parents for making me what I am today. I am beholden to them for their unquestioning total support in all my endeavors. Without their affection, blessings and emotional sustenance it would have been impossible for me to finish this work. My siblings Sandeep, Vineet and Monika have been my greatest source of strength. They took special interest and pride in my work. Over the years they have been my admirers, critics, motivators, companions at field trips, cheerleaders and if required babysitters. I do not wish to belittle their contribution in my life by thanking them. Nishtha, Shalini and Ashwini always provided much needed emotional support and care. Lakshita has always been a delightful distraction and Lavanya, a sweet hope.

I owe a great debt to Manoj, my husband without whose inspiration, cooperation and support, this research was simply impossible. This work belongs to Tanaya, my daughter. She has grown up with this work. Many photostated primary papers still carry the imprints of her early childhood creativity. I hope, one day she would understand why the concerns addressed in this work were important in her mother’s life.

J.N.U New Delhi, 3rd October, 2006

Richa Kapoor Malhotra