ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Without so many people's help, I could not have finished this thesis. It, however, is not possible to give all the names of the people who helped me to complete this paper.

First of all, I would like to thank my two supervisors, Prof. Mridula Mukherjee and Prof. Neeladri Bhattacharya for their encouragement and criticism about my drafts which enabled the arguments in the thesis to reshape and for their editing my drafts. I am especially grateful to Prof. Bhattacharya for his commenting about my earliest draft via Internet while I was away from India for years and for his pushing my back strongly to finish the PhD work at the final stage.

I am deeply indebted to Indian Council of Cultural Relations that enabled my research in India in 1995-1999 by providing fellowship.

I would also like to thank the following archives and libraries and their staff both in India and in Japan: National Archives of India, New Delhi; Panjab State Archives, Chandigarh and Patiala; Nehru Memorial Library, New Delhi; Central Secretariat Library, New Delhi; Supreme Court Library, New Delhi; Panjab State Secretariat Library, Chandigarh; Library of Institute of Oriental Culture, University of Tokyo; Library of Institute of Developing Economy, Chiba, Japan, Center for Foreign Law Materials, University of Tokyo; Mr. L.N. Malik at JNU Library.

I thank Prof. Hiroyuki Kotani at Tokyo Metropolitan University, who kindly allowed me to use his personal collection of Punjab Law Reporters.

In the process of collecting materials in Punjab, the following people especially helped me: Prof. Indu Banga at Panjab University; Lalita Anand; Achal
Anand; Sukhvinder Singh and his family members.

Friends and other people supported and helped me in Delhi when I faced difficulty in the course of the PhD work and I appreciate their encouragement and help: Tomoko and Toshio, two Yukikos, Kiyoto, Oum, Dhrub, Natasha, and Arun Chandra.

I also thank Prof. Aditya Mukherjee's for his hospitality whenever I visited Prof. Mridula Mukherjee.

I would like to thank Prof. Satish Saberwal, who is my ex-supervisor and who has already retired. He helped me when my admission to JNU was once cancelled in 1995. Without his help, I could not have even started my PhD work in JNU.

Finally I am grateful to my parents for always having encouraged me to finish this PhD work.
