Acknowledgements

I would like to thank my advisor Dr. SH Patil for introducing me into the research area of wireless sensor networks, for her help and support during all phases of this thesis, which always inspired and motivated me. I am grateful for all the time he devoted to my work and me despite his regular academic and family duties. He became a good friend and I hope this relationship will last after the end of this thesis too.

No words of thanks are enough for Brig (Prof) RM Khaire for his unstinted support. Without his support this thesis would not have been as it is today. He was truly a motivating force ‘bucking’ me up when I felt down and out! Yes he has truly inspired me to move on. A ton of thanks once again.

My sincere thanks to JJT University for providing a unique platform for research scholars to present and project their ideas in a fair and transparent manner. The research process adopted by the university is innovative and allows scholars to do meaningful research. Mr. Om Prakash of the ECE department for expertly navigating a scholar’s requirement and the stringent ones of the university for mutual benefit.

A special thanks to my family: Rajnish and daughter Shweta for the many long and fruitful discussions I had when I was with them in USA, NJ, which always inspired and kept me bashing on. His practical tips on how to research any topic given his experience of his own doctoral research were of great help. My younger daughter Swati for the motivation and inspiration that she gave during the trying times of this wonderful journey and Sumit my younger son in law for the critical angles to my methods of completing this work.
My wonderful student team of Kranti, Yadnesha, Arush, Chetali, Siddhartha and Gautam; their constant de-bugging efforts on my programs, editing and proof reading my script and many hours of simulating discussions brought to bear the shape of my dissertation in its present format. Especially Arush, this report would not have been completed without his tireless and selfless efforts, words aren’t enough to thank him! My colleagues of the department each and everyone gave me the moral courage, especially Mrs. Shilpa Gaikwad and MV Patil for their efforts.

Most importantly my wife Omi who took the entire household worries away from me, saw to me small needs so that I could concentrate on my research.