ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

This work would not have been possible was it not for the support and kindness of several people. My profound gratitude to all.

I would first like to thank the lineage of traditional yoga practitioner teachers, including my own family guru parampara, who have persevered, protected, preserved, promoted and propagated this glorious Yoga Tradition through the ages against all odds for the benefit of humanity.

Grateful pranams to Yogarishi Swami Ramdev, for giving me the opportunity to serve and learn at Patanjali Yogpeeth, Haridwar. I am thankful to The Yoga Institute (founded in 1918 by Shri Yogendraji, the oldest organized yoga institute in the world), Santacruz, Mumbai, where I had the opportunity to complete the Madhya Yoga Siksha, Yoga Teachers’ Training Course. Grateful pranams to Dr. Jayadeva Yogendra (President), Smt. Hansa J. Yogendra (Director), Smt. Anjali Shete (Course Coordinator) and their dedicated team of yoga teachers.

I would like to sincerely express my deep gratitude to my supervisor, Dr Om Sai Ramesh V., MBBS, DPM, PhD. (NIMHANS), for all his help, support, valuable advice and guidance throughout.

I am very much grateful to Dr Madhu Gupta and Dr Anju Singh, Research Coordinators and pillars of JJT University, for initially encouraging me to take up research, for facilitating the administrative process and for being available throughout, patiently and very kindly clarifying all doubts and queries. I would like to humbly thank Dr Vinod Tibrewala, Chancellor, JJT University, and the fraternity of JJT University, for providing me and many researchers like me in our country, this rare and privileged opportunity to think and do research and creating such a flourishing and congenial intellectual environment.

I am indebted to my family, especially my wife, Dr M. A. Rajalakshmi, for being a pillar of support, wise counsel and compassionate companionship and my mother Smt. Indira Narasimhachar, for being my first teacher and giving me good sanskar. Many thanks to my brother Arun, his wife Vani, my niece Sangeetha and my nephew Mukund. Thanks also goes to my father-in-law Wg. Cmdr. (Retd.) Srinivasan, sister-in-law Jayashree and other relatives and friends.
