Acknowledgements

Words fail to express my gratitude to Professor I. S. Gulati and Dr. T. M. Thomas Isaac without whose guidance and encouragement it would not have been possible for me to complete this work. Professor Gulati's keen interest on my work, critical queries and constant support provided me with courage and inspiration to go deeper into the research problem in an analytical way. Dr. Isaac took keen interest on my work and gave me constant encouragement. He went through the draft and gave invaluable comments. I owe a lot to Professor Gulati and Dr. Isaac, which is much beyond the formal acknowledgement of a thesis.

I express my gratitude to Professor K. K. Subrahmanian for having gone through the draft meticulously and providing valuable comments, which helped improve the quality of the draft. In CDS in house PhD progress seminars, Professor Subrahmanian's suggestions had always been very useful. I am also grateful to Dr. D. Narayana who was one of the members of my 'Interim Dissertation Committee' for various discussions at the initial stage of the work. In several occasions, Dr. Narayana listened to the progress of my work and made useful suggestions even when he was not formally associated with my thesis. I thank him a lot for this.

Dr. Chandan Mukherjee, the director, has always been encouraging. I always remembered, when I was taking up job assignment, he was telling me 'be bull headed and submit the thesis'. I am also grateful to Dr. G. N. Rao, the PhD Coordinator, for his support and encouragement.

I am grateful to both of them.

In my office at National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, I express my gratitude to Dr. Ashok Lahiri, the director, and Dr. Amarendra Bagchi, emeritus Professor, for their queries regarding the progress of my thesis work, which kept me moving towards submission. I am grateful to Dr. Bagchi for providing me valuable insights on public debt issues when he visited CDS in 1996. I am also grateful to Dr. Indira Rajaraman for a discussion and providing me with certain very useful references when I visited NIPFP in 1998. Both Dr. Lahiri and Dr. D. K. Srivastava have been very considerate in accommodating my leave request. I express my sincere gratitude to both of them.

I also had a very useful discussion with Dr. Atul Sharma, Professor Indian Statistical Institute, New Delhi, when he visited CDS in 1999. My discussion with Dr. Aji
Karnik, and Dr. M. J. Manohor Rao of Mumbai University was extremely fruitful. I had the opportunity to discuss on the intricate issues related to internal debt management with Dr. R. K. Pattnaik, director, internal debt management cell, Reserve Bank of India, which helped clarifying certain doubts. I am thankful to him. My Discussions with S. Mohanan Pillai and Ameer Bacha of RBI was also quite helpful. I thank both of them for sparing their time to discuss issues with me.

In my Office at NIPFP, I have interacted with Saumen Chattopadhyay and Subrata Mandol regarding my thesis in several occasions. They patiently listened to me and discussed issues at length. Mukesh Anand and Subrato Mandol went through the first chapter of my thesis and raised certain points, which required clarifications. I have been benefited greatly through interaction with Mr. P. N. Bhattacharaya having vast knowledge of budgetary data. I am grateful to my colleagues Dr. Kavita Rao, Dr. Pratap Ranjan Jena, Dr. Bhunga Rao and Dr. O.P. Bohra for their sincere concern regarding the progress and submission of thesis. I also thank Dr. Gautam Naresh and Mr. Ajay Kumar Helen for their encouragement. Dr. Sugato Dasagupta's queries on the progress of the work have always worked on me positively.

I have always been provided a helping hand whenever I approached the library staff, computer centre and administration of CDS. The librarian Mr. Ramakrishnan, Mr. Anil Kumar, Mr. Gopakumar, Mr. Chidambaram, Mr Joseph Kurien, and all others had always been very helpful. In computer centre, Sujana paid immediate attention to any computer-related problems brought to her notice. In administration, I am extremely grateful to Mr. Soman Nair for his help and support. Phil Roy always gave me a sense of comfort whenever I approached to him with problems, whether professional or personal. I shall always remember the helping hand of Sreekumari, Geetha and Celine in the PhD section.

I am thankful to the Mr. Ramesh, Mr. Panikkar, Mrs. Chandra, Mrs. Padma, and Mr. Aniruddhan of accounts section of CDS for their help.

Though the list is not exhaustive, but I must mention that life would have been dull but for the company of Dennis, Bhaskar, Rammohan, Anandraj, Christopher and Helen, Sanjith, Hari Kurup and Deepa, Suresh Babu, Murugan Annan, Antonyto Paul. The presence of Darley, Binoy and Jaysree, Veeraputharan, Jayachandran, Charvak, Jojo and Prasad, kept the campus active. Deepa Sankar had always been quite helping. I am equally grateful to Shaheena.

I shall always cherish the nice time I had with Veeramani and Aziz, the fun and music and the joint reading of draft. Other members of this orchestra were Ratikan, Ranjan, Subu, Balaji, Prabhakaran, Gaurav, Varindar and Shyjan are other members of CDS community who added charm during my short stay in the campus this time. I also thank Beena and Gilbert for the same. George Kutty has always extended help I asked for with utmost dedication. The helping hand of Ajith, Anil, Rajesh Suresh and Ameer will always be remembered.

The CDS regiment in Delhi, especially my contemporaries, has always been very nice to me and regular interaction with them kept the CDS spirit up in me. Again, though the list is not exhaustive, special mention needs to be made of M. R, Anand and Sudha, Saikat Da and Aditi, Babu and Neetha, and Uma and Sam.

I shall be failing in my duty, if I do not acknowledge Ummichi, Lalu and Deepu for their encouragement and affectionate concern. I am also grateful to Koshy uncle, aunty and their son Nishin, for their love and care.

Back home, at Siliguri, it is my Baba and Maa, without whose blessings, I would not have been able to complete this work. Though, away from home for years, we always miss each other, my thesis submission will be one of the happier moments of their life including my brother Bomba. I gratefully acknowledge Pishi, Baro Mashi, Baro Mesho, Nani Masi, Mamu, Somnath, Tuntuni and her little daughter, Babua. Puchhi and Bhona for keeping our home alive with lots of fun and activities, when my brother and myself are away from our parents.

Last but not least, it is my wife Lekha, who stood by me always from the formative stage of this work. Starting from collection of relevant documents, she helped me immensely at various stages of this work.
