ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

It is difficult for me to express my feeling. I am grateful towards several people who have helped me in making this thesis a reality.

First of all, I would like to offer my deep gratitude and heartfelt thanks to my supervisor, Prof. Rakesh Gupta for his patience, invaluable guidance, thoroughness, constructive criticism, encouragement and empathetic understanding. I extend my gratitude towards all of the teachers in the centre for Political Studies, Prof. Aswini K. Ray, Prof. Zoya Hasan, Prof. Sudha Pai and Prof. Gurpreet Mahajan, who are teachers not only by profession but also by soul, for their warm welcome and useful consultancies.

I own my indebtedness to other teachers and non-teaching staff in the Centre for Political Studies, from whom I have received kind suggestion and support during my study. I also express my heartfelt thanks to all staff in the Libraries of Jawaharlal Nehru University, Academic Resource Center of Rajabhat Suan Dusit University, Library and Information Center of National Institute of Development Administration (NIDA), Library of the Office of Civil Service Commission and Library of King Prajadhipok’s Institution for their valuable co-operation and assistance in locating relevant and necessary research materials.

I like to take this opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks to Department of Education, Ministry of Human Resource and Development, Government of India for granting me scholarship through the Indian Council for Cultural Relations (ICCR) that enabled me to study Ph.D. in the Centre for Political Studies, School of Social Sciences, Jawaharlal Nehru University, for three years.

My Thai friends in Jawaharlal Nehru University; Phramaha Dr. Ranavi Papol, Miss Oumboon Singussawin, Mr. Charoen Puwijit, Mr. Tanawat Sangaroorn, Mr. Montree Wiwasukh and Miss Anong Kowitsthienchai, all deserve equal praise for their being good companions in India, for the last three exciting years. They are not only my friends, but also like brothers and sisters in the second family, giving me their kind support and words of encouragement that inspired me in easing my work and achieving my goal of Ph.D.

I wish to thank Dr. Neilmani Sahoo, Dr. Do Kim Son, Mr. S. Pandia Raj and Mr. Chittaranjan Mohanty for helping me in sharpening my writing skills and how to overcome anxiety of writing in English, without whom my work would have never come into existence.

My esteemed friends and colleagues in Dusit Commercial Center. Rajabhat Suan Dusit University have been a source of inspiration and support. I owe them gratitude. Mr. Theerayut Lateefee, Mr. Anek Saengnoree and Mr. Santi Lateefee deserve my special thanks and acknowledgments, for their inspiration, words of encouragement and assisting me in data collection at Bangkok, Thailand.

Last but not the least, I express my gratitude to my loving parents for their greatest love, supports and words of encouragement since I was born into this world. My acknowledgements would have never been completed, if without thanks to the members of my family, who have always shared efforts, frustrations, loneliness, excitement and joy no matter where and how far I am.

My thesis is sincerely and heartily dedicated to my beloved parents, and also to my beloved His Greatest Majesty the King Bhumibol Adulyadej, Queen Sirikit and Princess Maha Chakri Sirindhorn.

Jitprapat Saisopa