

ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

My Journey towards this thesis has been a bunch of chain reactions beginning with my stint as a Research Associate at an NGO. While working there on women's issues, I realized that the Indian Law even though seemed favourable towards women are actually not. This drove me to the idea of working on an interdisciplinary topic about Law and Literature.

When I landed at the English and Foreign Languages University I was filled with scattered ideas. I am ever grateful that I found my supervisor Prof. T. Samson who guided me through all the thick and thin and helped me pursue my ideas further. His continuous support and mentoring throughout the course of the research and writing of this thesis is the primary reason, I am able to successfully complete my work today. I could not thank much for the level of patience he has shown towards me.

I would also like to thank my advisory committee member Dr. Asma Rasheed. The insights that she has provided and the hard questions she posed has helped me during the writing stages.

My sincere thanks goes to Dr. Rajiv Krishnan and Prof. Prakash Kona for the help and encouragement and the cheering words that helped the students like me face many obstacles. Thanks to Dr. Shilpaa Anand for the wonderful course work and to Dr. A Hariprasad for always being there.

This work would not have seen the light of the day had it not been for the various department and library staffs who have pushed through with all the paperwork at the fastest pace possible to help me concentrate on my study. They have always been supportive and have helped in every possible way.

Thank You Prashant and Sujith for all the help provided during material collection and for running after people to get me the permission to use court libraries. Thanks a ton Seema for all the help that you have rendered at NIMHANS.

Thanks Adv Manoj Kumar who helped me get access to people who could help me with primary materials for one of the important cases. Thank you Adv. Gikku Jacob, Adv. Manoj Kumar and Adv. Gopakumar Aluva for your help. Though the discussions that we had were limited to a few hours, it has thrown a good light on the different debates in the legal arena.

A special thanks to my family. Words cannot express how grateful I am to my mother, sister and grandmother who bore all my tantrums. Thanks also to my father-in-law and mother-in-law for their support. All of your prayers for me were what sustained me thus far.

I would also like to thank my friends Deepthi, Megha and Shaiba for always being there in all my worries and happiness, Sruthi, for the food and the stimulating discussions, the sleepless nights we were working together before deadlines, and for all the fun we had in the last five years. Ram and Anu for patiently going through my work and the comments, Ramya and Remya for constantly reminding dates, Sreebitha, Renuka and Vijiechi who were great buddies, Balu for helping me in formatting, Shabeer, Narayanan and all the other friends.

Last but not the least, the two people who pestered me and wanted me to get this degree more than myself, Debu and my Papa. Thanks for the support in moments when there was no one to answer my queries. Without your motivation and complaints, this research would have only been a dream. Thanks for making it true.
