ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

During my student days I was immensely impressed by the content of the novels of D.H. Lawrence with his distinctive and remarkable acumen to delve deeper into the human psyche unfolded by the libidinal urge. I was equally caught in a dilemma of horns whether to depreciate him or to appreciate his universality of truth about men and women relationship. The more I pored over his books and critical analysis about the theme of his novels, the greater my interest deepened and awareness awakened. The credit goes to my supervisor Professor Shiva Jatan Thakur, Department of English, Patna University, who has immeasurably enriched my intellectual horizon by a wealth of information and intellectual analysis of the literary work of D.H. Lawrence putting him on the pedestal of immortality in the galaxy of literary world. I have the privilege to pursue my doctoral thesis under the intellectual guidance of Prof. Thakur, who is a great scholar in his own right.

I am deeply indebted to Prof. (Dr) Shankar A. Dutt, a mentor of mine, a great scholar, an expert on psychoanalysis theories in post graduate Department of English, Patna University. He gifted me a large number of books and resource materials and engaged in many meaningful conversations that contributed to the evolution of significant ideas.

Sincere thanks are due to some of my teachers for their suggestions and materials provided during my research work. They are Dr Arjun Kumar, Prof. Muniba Sami, Prof. S.S. Prasad, Prof. Mahashweta Ghosh, Prof. Radha Mohan Singh, Prof. Indibar Mukherjee and Prof. Arun Kamal.

I also want to convey my warm gratitude to all the staff of Khuda Bakhsh Library, J.N.U. Library, Patna University Central Library; Sahitya Academy Library, for generous help in searching resource materials and innumerable Xeroxes.

It is also my pleasure to exhibit my deepest sense of reverence to my father, Mohd. Hadi and my mother Shahjahan Begum without whose blessing, the work would not have been possible. I am equally extremely thankful for the loving support of my father and mother-in-law, Mohd. Naeem and Razda Khatoon.

Finally, I would fail in my duty if I don’t acknowledge the monumental contribution, social and psychological support of my husband Azmat Karim Shaikh along with unextinct support make me discern and deeper pattern of libido to ensure warmth of relationship between husband & wife to make it more sustainable and vibrant.

My thanks are due to Md. Arif (Khushboo Computer Typing, Opp. P.U, Patna) for his strenuous work to give final shape of the typing and printing of the thesis.
