Acknowledgements

This is the very last but crucial piece remaining before this thesis is bound. This moment for me, is an emotionally packed one, as I have given my heart and soul to this project and I wanted to fulfil the dream of my mother. I have had the usual tensions and demands of work at my professional front, right at the time when I was at the verge of completing my thesis. This project is, therefore, a sign that all hurdles can be overcome with determination and lots of help from the well wishers and our near and dear ones. I am deeply indebted to all those who have been there for me through this Ph. D. Programme.

This acknowledgement is not merely a formal thanks note; it is the best way I could attempt to convey my sincere gratitude and respect for those who have been indispensable in completing this project.

My husband Sudhir Goyal has been solely responsible for goading me on every step of this long and arduous academic journey. During the course of my research work, whenever I was at the verge of giving up this study due to preoccupations with domestic duties and my professional duties, it was only my husband’s insistence, support and encouragement that convinced me to pursue the degree. My son, Deepankar has tremendously understood of the long hours that I was not there for him. He also helped me in completing my thesis by his technical skills. I am sure all women reading this know how fortunate I am to have such a supportive family.

I would like to thank Shri. V. K. Jain and Dr. Prakash Pradhan my mentors, Dr. Anju Singh, Dr. Abhiranjan Coordinator Ph. D. Department of JJT University and the entire selection committee, for thinking me not only able enough to be a part of the University but capable enough to take on the research component as well. The past two years have been one of the most enriching experiences of my life, for which I will forever be grateful to these people. Their support and faith in me have made all the difference.

Inspiration and valuable comments along with critical and analytical guidance provided by my research supervisor Dr. Surekha Sawant instilled a lot of confidence in me which enabled me to have a sharp focus and clear insight into the subject of my research. She always spared time and provided her valuable advices whenever and in whatever matters relating to this research were required by me. I express my profound veneration and deep sense of gratitude. Sincere thanks to my mother, Nirmala Agarwal for whom I carried out this research work. Satish Chandra Agrawal, my father, gave his valuable suggestions and inputs for my thesis and editing it and master Deepanker, my son, took the pains of writing the final copy of my thesis, thanks will be merely formal for both of them.

I would also like to thank my friend Neeti Garg, who kept on motivating me for completing my work and throughout the process she was with me.

My sincere gratitude to the almighty God for His kind blessings which helped me to carry out the work without any difficulty.
