ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

When I ventured to undertake this research work, it seemed a daunting task. Once I started working steadfast, I found help pouring in from many quarters, so many of them encouraging me, supporting me, guiding me and helping me in every possible way. That was the fillip I needed, a shot in the arm, so to say. I thanked my stars and plodded on. Now, at the end of this journey into the unknown, the safety of the haven relieves me. The toil of the last several years is coming to its final grand finale. At this moment of satiation, I do not have the apt words to thank all those who helped me with little deeds of kinds and love. Such people are numerous and my only regret is that I cannot name each and every one of them. There are a few of them whom I cannot but mention, without whose help this thesis would not have seen the light of day. Here are those souls who made my work rich, rewarding and enjoyable.

My sincere thanks are due to Dr. P.J Philip, former Principal, St. Thomas College, Kozhencherry and Research Guide in Economics Research Department, Marthoma College, Thiruvalla whose erudite suggestions throughout the tenure of this study saw it to its final shape. His whole-hearted support, patient help and guidance from the proposal to the final thesis have motivated and sustained me. I express my gratitude to his family members who always extended me cordial welcome into their home, boosting my morale.

At this juncture, I place on record my gratitude to Dr. Ravi Raman, Associate Fellow of Centre for Development Studies, Thiruvananthapuram, who kindled my interest in Economics, and encouraged me to pursue a career in academics. His comments at various stages of the study motivated me.

I am greatly indebted to Prof. C.A Abraham, former Principal of C.M.S College, who painstakingly edited the thesis. He spent several weeks, refining and polishing the final draft. His contagious sense of optimism helped me in moments of frustration. I wholeheartedly thank him for the umpteen numbers of ways in which he motivated me to complete this work. I acknowledge the assistance given by Lt. Dr. Sebastian George, and Dr. Sreejith, Lecturers, St. Thomas College, Pala, in the analysis of data.

The Indian Council of Social Sciences Research has supported me financially for this research work. I sincerely thank them for the Fellowship given.

The teachers of the Economics Department, Marthoma College, Thiruvalla, have shown a keen interest in my study and their valuable and timely help are acknowledged. I record my appreciation for the facilities offered by the Economics Research Department, Marthoma College, Thiruvalla.

I am indebted to the comradeship and cooperation of Technical staff of VFPCK, in the districts of Kottayam and Ernakulam. The friendly and cordial ambience of the SHG meetings kept my morale high throughout field work. My friends Elizabeth Dominic, Biju George and Dhanya have wholeheartedly supported me and helped me throughout the study period. My gratitude due to them is placed on record.
I am greatly indebted to the motivation given to me by my parents, whose undying love and affection groomed and sustained me in my ambitious pursuits in personal and professional life. My husband Shibu P Jacob supported me passionately, lending a helping hand whenever possible. My two little children Deeya and Deepu always watched me in sheer amusement, whenever I was fretting over tasks which seemed beyond my capabilities. Their unconditional love and wholehearted cooperation inspired me and saw me to the final thesis submission.

I strongly believe that the blessings from God Almighty are instrumental in the successful completion of any human task. I humble myself before His supreme power.
