I take this opportunity to express my heartfelt thanks and gratitude to research supervisor Dr. D.V. Gopalappa, Associate Professor in Economics, Department of Studies in Economics and Co-operation, University of Mysore, Mysuru. His encouragement and constant support made this research see the light of the day. His persuasion time and again literally made this work getting completed. I also remain thankful to his family members for the warm hospitality whenever I visited.

I am fortunate to have the benevolence of all the faculty members of the Department of Economics and Co-operation and I register my sincere thanks and regards to everyone. I would like to make a special mention to Prof. Indumathi, Chairperson, Prof. Leelavathi, Prof. Indira and Prof. Vishwanatha Department of Studies in Economics and Co-operation, University of Mysore for raising relevant issues on my research work during the pre-submission colloquium at the Department.

I would like record my sincere thanks and gratitude to Prof. Mahendra Kumar, Prof. Manjappa Hosamane and Prof. Rajendran for their help, concern and the very useful discussions we had on numerous occasions.

Office staff of the Department, Mrs. Anitha and others were very helpful. They extended all help without any grins whenever I approached. My sincere thanks to all of them. Equally I thank the staff of the Directorate of Research, UoM; they were very kind and helped patiently in completing the required formalities.

I am fortunate to have a very understanding family, my wife and children. They silently went through all the difficulties that my absence would have caused to them and express my sincere gratitude for their patience, understand and moral support.

I would like to thank late Dr. K.N. Reddy, former Professor at the National Institute of Public Finance and Policy, New Delhi who introduced and mentored me in the area of Health Economics.
