ACKNOWLEDGMENT

At the very outset, with a deep sense of reverence I express my heartfelt gratitude to my learned supervisor, Prof. (Dr.) Jagannath Tripathi but for whose valuable guidance, affectionate help and prompting encouragement, my this literary venture of achieving Doctorate degree in English would have remained a mere dream. He always exhorted me to work on and on until it reached its fruition. It is true, beyond any shadow of doubt that it is he and he alone who, in the real sense, is my academic father.

Then, the completion of this project is the sweet fruit of the blessings of my revered father, Sri Kamlakar Mishra, a renowned figure of Gauriganj, Sultanpur and a veteran educationist of the region, as well as my loving mother, Smt. Nirmala Devi Misra, an incarnation of feminine loveliness. Indeed these two illustrious personalities I can never dare thank formally. I, rather, bow down to their feet with respect and love, and seek their blissful benedictions for the rest of my future life.

Added to this, my elder brothers Sri Anil Misra and Alok Misra along with my in-laws Sri Jagdish Pd. Misra and Smt. Savitri Devi Misra, too, have always encouraged me to rise high in my academic career in the teeth of all opposite circumstances and multifarious hurdles of life. Side by side, I stand grateful to all my relatives, my near and dear ones and well-wishers for their warmth of enthusiasm and sincere feelings.
Nevertheless, the person who went on shouldering all kinds of domestic responsibilities himself and never disturbed during my sedentary literary pursuits, rather inspired me always to work on unstintedly is none else but my life-partner, my alter-ego, my second-self i.e. my sweet loving husband, Sri Lokesh Misra along with my sweet little baby, the silent supporter of mine. They claim my respect, love and gratitude.

Besides, on this glorious moment of literary achievements I feel proud and privileged to express my thankful regards to Sri J.P. Tripathi, founder of Indira Gandhi, P.G. College, Gauri Ganj, Sultanpur along with all the Staff members of the college for their constant and invaluable support.

Further, I feel it to be my duty to express my thankfulness to the various universities wherever I visited by providing me with all sorts of help in making available to me the required books, journals and other research materials in different forms. At the end, how I can miss thanking Mr. Vivek Sareen, the computer expert who typed my thesis well in time in spite of his ill health.

And, to top it all, I owe much to my several sincere friends who have ever wished me highly in this literary academic project.

Neeta Mishra