ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Words always prove to be too weak to express the sincerest gratitude. This research has seen the light of the day after the unforgettable help of a number of people to whom I record my sincerest obligations.

I sincerely acknowledge, at the outset, my debt of gratitude to my supervisor, Dr. Kamal Mehta, Professor and Head, Department of English and Comparative Literary Studies, Rajkot, for his encouragement and support during the composition and completion of this thesis. But for his scholarly and constructive suggestions as my supervisor, it would have been difficult to complete this research work. He supervised my research with profound patience in spite of his various pre-occupations and busy schedule.

I owe a debt of gratitude to Dr. P. G. Jyotikar for providing me the volumes of Dr. Ambedkar which gave me insight into the Ambedkar Literature.

I would like to express my heartfelt sense of gratitude to my respected parents Shri N. T. Upadhyay, Former Principal, Dharmendrasinhji Arts College, Rajkot and Smt. Lataben Upadhyay who are the moving spirit behind my research work. I am deeply beholden to them for instilling confidence in me with constant words of encouragement, for putting up with much inconvenience during this research work and for all their blessings and prayers for my success.

My grateful thanks are due to my sister Dr. Purvi N. Upadhyay, Assistant Professor of English, Government Arts College, Kotda Sangani and my wife Mrs. Shivani R. Upadhyay, Assistant Professor of English, Government Engineering College, Rajkot for their sound support. Without their co-operation the present study would not have been possible.

I must not forget to mention abundance of thanks to my sister Hina T. Rajyaguru, my Brother in-law T. J. Rajyaguru, my niece Meera and nephew Darshan who have been, as they always are, a source of enormous encouragement.

Rushikesh N. Upadhyay