To the Almighty God, I bow on my knees with joy for the fulfillment of my humble prayer to give me health throughout the whole scholarly journey. I have had everything I need. Amidst the Tiger Reserved tropical jungle, across the roaring Teirei River, in the wilderness of insurgent groups and between the rolling rocks of landslide, the Lord has been my omnipotent Shepherd.

No words can adequately express my profound and heartfelt thanks to my supervisor, Dr. Ch. Udaya Bhaskara Rao, for his mental and physical devotion at every stage of my research work. He pulled me out when I was drowned in the sea; raised me up to the top of the hill ridges; wrapped me warm when my blood runs cold and; shared me all his brains and energy in bringing this thesis out. I pray that blessings follow him throughout his humble journey on Earth. I shall always remember the ill-health I had caused and the laughter I had given during his strenuous work for my research and I shall never forget his triplet roles as Supervisor, Colleague and Father.

I owe my sincere thanks to all the members of teaching and non-teaching staff as well as research scholars of the Department of Geography & Resource Management for their constant help, support, advice, suggestion and cooperation during and before my research work. I would like to keep in record by their names - Prof. P. Rinawma, my propeller shaft; Prof. G. Kumar, my adviser and; Dr. Rintluanga Pachuau, a source of relieve from depression.

I am grateful to our University well-known investigator, Dr. James L. T. Thanga, Department of Economics for giving me an opportunity to
