Acknowledgement

There are no words to thank my Research Supervisor Dr. M. A. Jeyaraju, Professor and Head of the Department of English, GRI. He has been a pillar of strength and has encouraged and inspired me from the day I registered for my Ph.D. programme. He is bold and innovative, a painstaking perfectionist and a scholar with critical acumen and excellent command over the language. He has literally gone through every word of my drafts. Suffice it to say, he has the patience of Job and is a blessing to research scholars like me.

I thank Dr. D. Parameswari, Professor and Head of the Department of English, Madurai Kamaraj University, Madurai, member of the Doctoral Committee for my Ph.D. programme, for her support and encouragement.

I am deeply indebted to Dr. Isaac Sequeira, Academic Fellow, ASRC, Hyderabad, who gave me the courage and confidence needed to face challenges in this pioneering work. He also gave me valuable material, which helped in the early formulation of my ideas. He is the godfather of every researcher like me.

I am extremely grateful to Dr. P. Marudanayagam, Professor and Head of the Department of English, Pondicherry University for all the guidance, encouragement and material provided. He is the 'archetype' of an ideal scholar who giveth guidance even before being asked.

I place on record my deep sense of appreciation for and thanks to Sidney Sheldon who sent me valuable information and indirectly inspired me from the beginning by infusing in me the courage and confidence of the Sheldonian heroine.

I must thank the Department of Education, Government of Pondicherry, for permitting me to register for a part-time Ph.D. programme. I am grateful to GRI for allowing me to register as an external candidate. I would have been lost and floundering but for ASRC, Hyderabad. I thank ASRC for granting me a TRG and for the friendly help extended by each member of the staff of ASRC Library and Hostel. I am also thankful to the USIS Library, Chennai.

I remember with gratitude the scholars of Oxford University and Sorbonne University, Paris, and several other scholars I met and interacted with during my tour of England and Europe.

I thank the library staff of Arignar Anna Govt. Arts College, Karaikal and Tagore Arts College, Pondicherry, and also my colleagues and friends for their support and encouragement. My overwhelming gratitude towards God Almighty and my dear family is too deep for words.
