ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

It gives me a deep sense of pride and satisfaction that I have been able to complete this socially significant extensive research work. The present thesis is the outcome of the continuous effort for the past few years and during this sociological study a number of people have been kind enough to guide me and lend me their invaluable help to make it inclusive. It is indeed very difficult for me to prioritise all these personalities but still I would name a few who have made all the difference.

The success of my work largely depends on the person under whose inspiration and guidance, it is accomplished. I must first of all express my heartiest gratitude to my supervisor Prof. R. S. Sandhu, whose patience, experience and scholarly advice has been invaluable. His access, kind suggestions and consistent encouragement in laying down the format of the study were extensively helpful in improving the quality of work.

I also extend my great thanks to Prof. Paramjit Singh Judge, Chairperson, Department of Sociology, for his cooperation at every stage. I am also thankful to Prof. Gurpreet Bal, formerly Chairperson, Department of Sociology, for helping me in completing other official requirements. I am also indebted to Prof. Jasmeet Sandhu for her statistical guidance in the tabulation of data. I am thankful to all other faculty members, fellow research scholars, librarians and all the staff members of the department for helping me in my research work.

I also extend my great thanks to Prof. S. L. Sharma, formerly Chairman, Department of Sociology, Punjab University, Chandigarh, for his able guidance in the reformation of my research proposal. I am also thankful to various officials of I.C.S.S.R. at Chandigarh and New Delhi for helping me in access to their database and libraries.

Further I am thankful to various respondents for their patience, cooperation and confidence they have reposed in me.

I am also indebted to my cousin sister Mrs. Khushwinder Kaur, Senior Lecturer in English, Government Training College, Jalandhar, for sparing her precious time in editing my thesis.

I would like to thank all those who in one way or another might have helped me in the project but whose names might have slipped out of my mind.
