Acknowledgements

Looking back and remembering the past is never easy, more so when we tend to remember triflest of things that have contributed to our present. But I am taking this as an opportunity to articulate my feelings for all those people who matters most in my life.

At first, I want to thank the Vice-chancellor and Dean of Bundelkhand University, Jhansi for allowing me to pursue my PhD from the University. I sincerely wish to express my thankfulness to Dr. Kartar Singh, Director, Sanjay Gandhi Post Graduate Institute of Medical Sciences, Lucknow, for providing me permission to do my research work at his Institute.

It is the moment of esteemed pleasure for me to express my heartfelt indebtedness and deepest gratitude to my guide Prof. P.S. Bisen, Former Director, J. C. Bose Institute of Life Sciences, Bundelkhand University, Jhansi for his positive attitude, continuous support and keen interest in my work. I have been his student since my Master’s degree programme and it was his motivation and constant encouragement that saw me opting for a research career. He was always there whenever I needed. He has been kind enough to squeezed out time for me from his busy schedule to provide me with novel ideas, analytical expertise and critical insight into the subject, which led to the successful completion of this work.

I feel the scarcity of words when I try to express my feelings for my guide Prof. Suraksha Agrawal. When I joined her, I was a raw student. It was her foresightedness and strong determination that lead to an allround development of her students and I was fortunate that I got a chance to work with her. She is a perfectionist and expects the same from her students. She groomed every aspect of my personality whether it was paper writing or data analysis or even my presentations in the departmental seminars. I don’t know what prompted her to choose me for a scientific project in the lab but from that day onwards, in each of my endeavors, she always stood by me. Her outstanding scientific intelligence and energetic approach steered my research abilities in the direction of the production of present research thesis. She was always there teaching, indulging and showering with endless words and deeds.
of praise love and hope. If I define my relation with her then it wont be a ‘student and guide’ but it will always be ‘a son and his mother’. Thank you Mam’, for everything you did for me.

I would be failing in my duties if I do not express my gratitude to my departmental faculty Dr. Balkraj Mittal, Dr. Sarita Agarwal, Dr. Shubha Phadke and Dr. Mandakini Pradhan for their cooperation, valuable suggestions and pursuance in the fruitful completion of the study. I express my thankfulness to all these teachers for their academics, training, encouragement and help during the years of my studentship without which it would have been impossible to relish climbing the ladder of education and research.

Another important person, whose valuable suggestions, concern and timely help paved the way for completion of my study is Dr. GautamPalit, Head, Neuropharmacology Unit, Division of Pharmacology, Central Drug Research Institute. I also want to thank Dr. Vinay Singh Chauhan and Dr. Bhanumati Chauhan, Lecturers, Department of Biotechnology, BundelKhand University for giving the words of strength and appreciation and helping me in every little step in the University campus.

I was lucky to have senior colleagues who like elder brothers and sisters were always ready to help at times of need. I would remember with utmost respect and fondness to Manoj Bhaiyya as he was the person who introduced me to Mam’ and from that day onwards guided me at that every moment whenever I felt lost. I fondly remember the way Uddalak Da taught me the miniscules of different bioinformatics softwares that helped me in analyzing the huge data. Harjeet ji was always my favourite senior, not because he was very helping but because the way he makes me feels comfortable in the bunch of strange faces when I joined SGPGI. Suhasini di, Suneeta di, Neetu, Anju, Swati and Pragya made so many concepts clearer and techniques doable with lots of love intermingled with occasional rebukes.

The laboratory environment was always refreshing and conducive for research because of the presence and efforts of so many people. I thank Mishraji for provided any consumable I needed at the shortest possible notice. I thank Neeraji for keeping the household of the lab running in spite of her busy hours and for always boosting my morale in dark hours. I will always cherish eversmiling disposition of Shashank Bhaiyya and inspiration that I imbibed from Sudha di to keep oneself indulged in work for several of hours. The note for the lab people will be incomplete without the mention of KCji and his jovial nature. Then, there are utmost words of thanks for Sanjay Bhiayya, the most efficient computer expert I have ever met. Whenever, I got puzzled in the computer jargon, I turned back to him and he always had the answers for my queries. He is another person from whom I have learnt a lot and I sincerely thank him for this.

The routine office works could never become boring because of the ever-joyous duo of Anandji and Duaji. The laughter, the jokes, the careless conversations got us through the paperwork in easy elan. I thank them both.

This long journey would have been impossible but for wonderful company of my friends who were my family at Lucknow. I had one of the most wonderful times with Vivek and Sanjeev; the two guys who are more like my brothers. Then there is a horde of loving mates, Atul, Priyush, Manorama, Tasleem, Abbas, Faheem, Meenal, Padma, and Gaurav whose love and respect I will always treasure. At this moment, I especially want to thank Manorama, Atul, Faheem, Meenal, Padma and Sudha di, who despite of their own works helped me in so many of my experiments and data collection that made it possible to compile the present thesis.

Life out of the SGPNI campus was very colorful, all due to my Motimahal friends, Kausar, Naveen and my all time favourite Ata. There were number of seniors in the hostel, Shahzad Bhai, Moammar Bhai and Ata Bhai who treated me like a kid, protecting from all the odds as it was the first time when I was came out of my home. I thank them all with my deepest regards. Mention of friends is incomplete without the name of Parvez, who was my family in Lucknow. Whatever, I did in Lucknow, he was there with me, celebrating my happiness and consoling my sorrows. At this time, I also want to thank a few people to whom I have not met in last plenty of years but each of them have an important contribution in my work. I thank Jaya for providing me the stimulus to join research and I also want to thank Asma for being my altruistic friend. Finally, a word of thanks to FRAMS, my huddle since childhood that still persists and is getting stronger day by day.

At last, a name to whom I owe my existence in Lucknow. My best friend and companion over the years, Poonam is my oxygen without whom; I could never be what I am.
There was no sphere of activity in which I did not depend on her. Apart from being the greatest emotional support she analyzed my data, typed my thesis, finalized all chapters, and was the source of unending inspiration throughout these years. It was she who withstood all my faults, my frustrations, my despair & my anger while I maintained a calm outside in front of the crowd. I won’t thank you. Just be there and I can do anything.

God cannot be with everyone all the times. That’s why he made parents. A child can never thank his parents but he owes his existence to them. I will also not show my courage to thank my parents, but I would just pray to God that never in my life should I do anything that can hurt them. My honest, simple and immensely will-powered parents never wanted anything from me. I can never be like you Papa and Amma, but just give me your blessings so that I can never be disloyal to your limitless trust, love, warmth and care. Let me not make your sacrifices go waste.

My brothers Tipu and Bittu have always been a source of stimulation for me. Their immense faith in my capabilities always inspired me to work harder. Their innocent love; care and affection always gave me a fresh lease of life. Thanks Bros.

Last but not least, I am thankful to the Allah, for putting such wonderful people in my life and bestowing His Warmth and Affection through them.
