ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

"The smallest act of kindness is worth more than the grandest intention". - Oscar Wilde

I humbly take this opportunity to thank all those beautiful souls in this journey of life who have made this research journey more special.

At the outset, I would first like to thank my family - Appa Amma, for giving me everything which words cannot amount - for being the only ones to tolerate and being my only cathartic outlet more often than normal, Vishakh - my twin soul for being the most pampering brother at times of dire need, and Suhas My "better" half in all true senses - for always putting me into reality at loss and instilling me with confidence when i seemed to have lost, and my acquired family - my mother in law - for being the non-clichéd and the empowering and unconditionally supportive mother, my father in law for taking care of me in all silent, subtle ways possible, my brother (not just) in law- a young friend, my little bundle of energy at home bubbling me up every time with his endless playfulness. I also thank my grandmother for her hearty blessings and constant encouragement.

It would be an understatement if I say I would be failing in my duty if I did not thank my Guru - my guide - Dr.H.S.Ashok. Thanking him is more out of heartfelt gratitude than just a formality. His words, guidelines, critical foresight, silent gestures of approval/disapproval were the only beacon of light in the tunnel of exploratory research. His never-dying energy, enthusiasm to answer all my questions at every time and his inspiration to be on the toes to learn is a muse to me and has taught me lessons not just in research but in life as well; for which I would be grateful forever.

I am extremely grateful to Dr.R.Gopalakrishna who, in his capacities as the respected Chairman of the Department of Psychology, has provided me with unlimited cooperation, in the administrative delegations and valuable insights and encouragement at crucial stages of research. I also would like to thank Dr. M. Sreenivas for always being the source of cheer and positive energy, and the senior faculty, my colleagues, my friends and research scholars and my dear students of the Department of Psychology, Bangalore University who have always directly and indirectly been instigating me always to optimally utilise my strengths in fulfilling my goals and for also having made this journey more special and memorable with their academic and emotional support. I also extend my heartfelt gratitude also to the non-teaching staff members at the Department of Psychology as well as various sections of the University – for their extremely important duties involved during the various phases of my research.

I am sincerely indebted to the University Grants Commission for granting me the fellowship for pursuing my research. It is this generous endowment that not just provided me the sufficient resources but also a psychological morale in conducting my research smoothly.

My utmost heartfelt gratitude to the subject experts Dr. Gayathri, Dr Shivakumar Swamy, Mrs. Yadushaila and their team for handing me over their pearls of wisdom which was of crucial importance for the study.

I extend my deepest sense of indebtedness to the trustee and members of Hymanshu Jyothi Kala Peetha, Veda Vijana Gurukula, Prabhodhini Gurukula, Mythreyi Gurukula, Om Shanthidhama, Vidyaniketan Public School, BASE and other allied educational institutions; and special thanks to Prof. M. K. L. N. Shastry and Dr. Vinayachandra Banavathy for having extended their unconditional support and cooperation in conducting my research; and a special thanks to all the young learners who participated in my study whose sharing of their knowledge of learning was a prime source of my knowledge of the knowledge of learning - that is my passion in this research.
My earnest thanks go out to the Bangalore University Library for its innovative and state of the art technology that helped me in availing its extremely valuable resources in accessing valuable journals, articles, books and information that has been a real backbone for this exploratory research and also a great source of material for me as a keen, inquisitive avid reader. I am also grateful to the National Institute of Advanced Studies for permitting me to avail their valuable library facilities.

I also would take my time out to heartily thank the faculty, and managing authorities of Jain University - Dr Shailaja Shastri and my fun bunch of colleagues who extended a supportive hand at the very end of my research which was very crucial and I cannot express the ways in which their support has been of overwhelming importance cherished for life.

I would like to thank all the people I have met in my life till now - my school teachers, my college teachers, my colleagues, my big gang of friends - my source of solace, my entire clan of my big, loving extended family for being supportive throughout in different, inexplicable ways.

Finally, I would like to end my acknowledgement by thanking the Almighty - My best friend - Lord Ganesha - my Ishtadevatha - and of course the entire team of positive energy atoms guiding us in this tough ordeal. Because they are the beginners and enders of all events in life. This piece of hard work and dedication is presented to them as a humble token of a sense of gratitude; for having pushed me, shoved me across obstacles, making me cross deep trenches. Climbing up hills and then only to pull me back to comfort me and sending messages of love, and acceptance in myriad ways that only a devotee and her devout share.
