The period of my Ph. D was a phase of ecstasy and agony. The phase of ecstasy was during the field work, the analysis of data, the "good" results and the numerous interactions with my guides, my parents, and my friends. While the phases of agony were natural calamities like flood and cyclone which had a high correlation coefficient affecting my field work and other hurdles like the interactions with the "computer".

I express my deep gratitude to my research supervisors Dr. R. Radhakrishna and Dr. D.N. Reddy, individually as well as collectively who have helped me in formulating the idea on land market into the present structure of the thesis. In addition to guiding me, providing insights and suggestions on the work, Dr Radhakrishna who has time and again brought my attention to study the process in the market and Dr. D.N.Reddy has shown me the importance of studying change and role of non-economic variables in studying the villages.

My interest in Economics was generated as a result of long debates witnessed during my childhood at B-J, between my parents and the long stream of guests who came to our residence. This lead me to do my graduation at M.C.C a unique college with a non-conventional course emphasizing analysis of changes in Indian Economy. As a part of the course I undertook the survey of three villages which gave me the first glimpse of Rural India. In specific, I fondly remember the long interactions with Dr. Joseph James in class as well as at his residence.

It was in this context I have developed interest in the study of Agrarian relations and I did my M.Phil on Models on Agrarian Relations and I thank Dr. D. N. Reddy for his guidance, which formed basis for the present study.
After selecting the topic for my Ph.D the most pressing problem faced was the selection of a village. In this I am thankful to ‘Serivella’ family for extending their contacts in the village. Mr. John Prasad and Mr. Johnson of the family also took keen interest in this study and gave their reflection on the village. I thank my respondents who helped me in collecting the data and also answering my repetative questions.

I am grateful to Dr. V. M. Rao for giving valuable suggestions to this work at different points of time while writing the thesis. I am thankful to Dr. G. Parthasarthy, Dr. Swaram Krishna Rao, Dr. Venkatramaiah, Dr. Vatsala Narasimham, Dr. Nanchanarai, Dr. Galib, Dr. Prasanna, Dr Arun Patnayak and Mr. Laxminarayana Dr G. Haragopal for sparing their time for discussion and also for providing some suggestions which I have tried my best to incorporate them in this work.

I thank (E.S.S for providing financial assistance in the form of a fellowship. I am thankful to the C.E.S.S library team particularly Mr. Vijay Kumar, Mr. Sudhakar and Mr. Srinivas which is one of the most well informed and helpful team I have ever come across. They solved the problems of searching books and articles. It was my pleasure to use the library. I also thank Mr. Venkataiah, Mr. Praveen who extended his support in drawing the map in the work and other staff members of C.E.S.S who have helped me both directly and indirectly in this work.

I thank the Dean, School of Social Sciences, faculty members and office staff of the Dept. of Economics University of Hyderabad.

I thank my friends, L. V. Ramana, Sri Krishna, S. V, Suneeta, Ramana Murthy, Keshav, Thimma Reddy, Krishna Reddy, Ramesh, Vasudev, Sudhir, Kennedy, Bhanu, Nagesh, Shabhan, Uma, Vinay, Ajantha, Srimu(C),Gangesh, Sudarshan, Chitti, Davuluri, Jackson, Subramaniam Raju, Prakash, Rajsekhar, and Radha Mohan, with whom I have interacted at different phases of my Ph.D.
I thank Shankar Reddy and Srinu for typing my thesis. The organisation of the final print out by Rajesh and Gangaji was a great relief to me. At the same time the support given by Shashi, Jolly, Pankaj, Hari, Tharagan and Murali Prasad during this phase brought me out of the problems of software—printer compatibility.

It is my pleasure to interact with Jodhka, Sneha and multi-lingual Sohail.

I fondly remember Prasad, with whom I had long interactions and who extended complete co-operation in terms of his time, resources and contacts to help me during all phases of my Ph.D. I am thankful to Narendra and Sudhakar for being “resourceful” whenever I was in need of any help. I thank Praveena for giving some suggestions. I am thankful to Ramesh and Madhukar for reading and editing the draft inspite of their busy schedule.

Lastly, I cherish the long interactions I had at B-I with R.S. Rao, Dr M. Bharathi (my parents) and Dr R. Kavita Rao (my sister) and Pankaj, Dutt (family friend) for their encouragement, inspiring discussions on various issues and emotionally supporting me.
