CONTENTS

Acknowledgements

Abbreviations and Notes

Abstract

Introduction

Chapter One

1. Background to North-East Literature(s) of India
   1.1 Introduction
   1.2 Historical Portrait of the North-East
      1.2.1 Origins
      1.2.2 Migration History
      1.2.3 Ethnic and Religious Composition
   1.3 Problematizing the ‘North-East’
   1.4 Narratives of the North-East
      1.4.1 Written Narratives: Pre-Colonial
      1.4.2 Written Narratives: Colonial
      1.4.3 Oral Narratives
   1.5 Post-Independence and Contemporary Literature
   1.6 Conclusion

Chapter Two

2. Feminism and Women’s Writing in India
   2.1 Introduction
   2.2 Definition of Feminism
   2.3 Origin of the Words ‘Feminism’ and ‘Feminist’
2.4 The Age of Enlightenment and the Beginnings of Feminism 57

2.4.1 Wollstonecraft and the Birth of Feminist Political Theory 61

2.4.2 The French Revolution and Early Feminism in Europe 62

2.5 Socialist Influences on Feminism 64

2.6 The Waves of Feminism 64

2.6.1 The Seneca Falls Convention 65

2.6.2 Mill and Bebel: The Woman Question 67

2.6.3 Virginia Woolf and Feminist Criticism 68

2.6.4 Beauvoir and The Second Sex 69

2.7 Feminist Criticism in the Twentieth Century 69

2.8 Women’s Writing in India 72

2.8.1 The Socio-Cultural Situation 72

2.8.2 An Overview of Women’s Writing in India 73

2.9 Conclusion 79

Chapter Three

3. Women’s Writing in the North-East of India 91

3.1 Introduction 91

3.2 The Socio-Cultural Situation of the North-East 92

3.3 An Overview of Women’s Writing in the North-East 99

3.4 Feminist Consciousness in the Fiction of North-East Women Writers 104

3.5 Feminist Criticism and North-East Women’s Writings 106

3.6 Conclusion 108

Chapter Four

4. Violence in the Fiction of Women Writers of the North-East 115

4.1 Introduction 115

4.2 Violence Presented in North-East Women’s Fiction 118
4.3 Violence and Its Impact on Women in the North-East 122

4.4 The Portrayal of Women and Violence in Temsula Ao’s These Hills Called Home and Laburnum for My Head 124

4.5 Insurgency and Its Violent Repercussions in Mitra Phukan’s The Collector’s Wife 134

4.6 Xenophobia and Ethno-Political Conflicts: The Causes of Violence in Bijoya Sawian’s Shadow Men 147

4.7 Conclusion 155

Chapter Five

5. Oppression and Discrimination in the Fiction of Women Writers of the North-East 161

5.1 Introduction 161

5.2 Women and Oppression 162

5.3 Gender Discrimination and Oppression in Easterine Kire’s A Terrible Matriarchy 166

5.4 Oppressive Patterns in Jahnavi Barua’s Rebirth 184

5.5 Discrimination Against Women in Temsula Ao’s “The Night” 199

5.6 Conclusion 203

Chapter Six

6. Conclusion 208

Bibliography 220