ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I avail the opportunity to express my deep sense of gratitude, heartfelt thanks and highest veneration to Mr. M. A. Khan, Reader, Department of Economics in P. P. N. College of C. S. J. M. University, Kanpur for his noble guidance and supervision, creative suggestions and keen interest throughout my endeavour from planning and execution of the project to the preparation of manuscript without which it would have not been possible for me to submit this work in the present form.

I am highly thankful to Dr. Babu Singh, Assist. Professor, Department of Economics, C. S. A. University of Agriculture and Technology, Kanpur for his generous attitude during my Ph. D. degree programme.

My sincere thanks are also due to the officials of Directorate of Agricultural Produce Market Board, Regulated Markets officials of concerned Districts and respondents of the study, for their kind cooperation and positive response.

I pay my reverence to my parents Smt. Krishna Singh and Shri Devendra Singh without whose blessing, encouragement and affection this education could not have been achieved.
It would be no exaggeration to say that without the blessing hands of my guardian uncle Shri Rajendra Singh, Assist. Professor, and aunty Smt. Saroj Singh, the dream of submitting the present work could have never come true.

I express my profound sense of respect to my babhi Smt. Nilay Singh, elder brothers Shri Sanjeev Kr. Singh and Shri Jitendra Kumar Singh for their affection, inspiration and moral encouragement and everlasting love of younger brothers Mr. Arun Kumar Singh and Mr. Sachin Kumar Sing and my dearest nephew Alind.

I am showered with unmeasurable affection and everlasting by my husband Mr. Gajendra S. Rana, father-in-law Shri B. S. Rana and mother-in-law Smt. Vimla Rana with whose blessing, I could complete my study.

Of course, not the least I acknowledge with thanks to Mr. Vimal Tiwari for excellent and careful typing of this thesis.
