Bibliography

Bracha Kramarski and Zemira R. Mevarech (2003). “to design an innovative instructional method for teaching mathematics in heterogeneous classrooms (with no tracking) and to investigate its effects on students”, American Educational Research Journal Summer, Vol. 34, No. 2. Pp. 365-394 Bar- Ilan University, Ramat-Gan, 52900, Israel.

Mathematics and Achievement. M.Phil. Edu., Madurai Kamraj University.

Sood, S.(1999), A study of creativity, problem solving ability and personality characteristics as correlates of mathematical achievement of students of residential and non-residential schools, Ph.D. Education. Punjab University, 6th Survey of Educational research. p.375.

Swarnlekha, N. (1997). Teacher empowerment strategies to promote problem solving ability in mathematics through joyful learning in teacher empowerment and school effectiveness at primary stage: International perspective, NCERT, New Delhi, 6th Survey of Educational research. p.318

