To my parents
... the study of chemistry is profitable, not only inasmuch as it promotes the material interests of mankind, but also because it furnishes us with insight into those wonders of creation which immediately surround us, and with which our existence, life and development, are most closely connected.

- Justus Von Liebig