Acknowledgement

With great respect and love, I express my deep sense of gratitude to Dr. Lakshmy Devi K.R., my Supervising Teacher – Professor, Department of Economics, University of Calicut for giving me invaluable guidance, unfailing support and dedication towards my work. Her role will remain as a source of enduring inspiration throughout my life. She has taken immense pains in the formulation of this dissertation and given me the sort of unstinted cooperation for which I can find no words adequate to express the sense of gratitude, I feel towards her.

It is a pleasure to express my ineffable gratitude to Dr. A.C. Kuttikrishnan, Professor and Head, Department of Economics, University of Calicut for his great and timely help, in all the aspects connected with this work.

No words can adequately express my deep sense of gratitude to all the faculty members of the department of Economics, Dr. John Matthai Centre, Dr. D.P. Nair, Dr. U.T. Damayanthi, Dr. K.K. Joseph, Dr. D. Ratnaraj, Dr. K.M. Kareem and Dr. D. Shyjan for their cooperation, they have extended to me in my Ph.D. Course.

I am greatly indebted to Dr. K.P. Mani, Professor, Department of Economics, Dr. John Matthai Centre, who have read out the entire thesis and provided with fruitful and useful suggestions. His comments were extremely helpful in pointing out the flaws in this thesis. I take this opportunity to acknowledge my feelings of gratitude towards him for his keen interest, constant encouragement and dynamic supervision without which, it could not have been possible for me to complete this work.

I am thankful to the administrative staff of the Department of Economics, Dr. John Matthai Centre, who helped in smoothening the administrative procedures and solving bureaucratic bottlenecks.

My field survey was an adventure for me in true sense, which I will always cherish despite the ups and downs that I have gone through. I am grateful to the various officials for extending their valuable help during my visits to their office. My sincere thanks are due to the officials of Directorate of Industries, Trivandrum different DIC's, KSIDC, SIDCO, SIDBI, Industries Department, State Planning Board, Trivandrum, and Kerala Soap Federation. I also thank the proprietors, partners, managers, office staff of various soap production units, and certain eminent persons in the field of providing vital data that were crucial for this study, and for sharing their rich experience. Without their generous cooperation, this study would hardly have become possible.

I have extensively used the facilities of Centre for Development Studies- Trivandrum, Department of Applied Economics, Cochin University, Cochin College of cooperation and banking, Kerala Agricultural University, Thrissur, Central Library - Calicut University, Small industries service Institute Thrissur, Kerala Institution for Local Administration, Dr. John Matthai Centre, University of Calicut, Thrissur and St. Joseph’s College, Irinjalakuda. It would be failing on my part if I do not acknowledge the respective library staff for their spontaneous co-operation which I received at various phases of this work.

I am thankful to my college management, faculty and staff of St. Joseph’s college for all the help and support they provided to me. I would like to express my sincere gratitude to Dr. Sr. Ranjana the present Principal, and the members of the Department of Economics, for their constant encouragement and sincere enquiries about the progress of my work which gave me courage to proceed ahead, keeping aside the constraints which are common in research. Thanks are also due to the other teaching and non teaching staff of my college.

I take this opportunity to acknowledge my feelings of gratitude to Dr. Rani Joy for the immense help she has rendered by way of meticulous proof reading and correction.

I am also obliged to many of my friends and well wishers who have helped me in many ways. The quantum of work they did may be too small or too large, irrespective of volume, they were of immense value to me in reducing the stress and strain of research. I am very thankful to Mercy and Savithri for their company, help and inspiration, they have given to me.
Words cannot express my acknowledgement to Sindhu and Simon for their sincere, ever willing help, they have done for me in the completion of this work. I owe Sindhu a true and sincere obligation which is much beyond a formal acknowledgement of gratitude for the immense pains taken by her in helping me at every stage of the work. I also place on record my gratitude to Mr. Pauly Manjaly, Educare Infotech Thrissur for his expert computer work.

I am happy to record that the students whom I taught were always been a source of inspiration to me in my academic arena and take this opportunity to thank them all for the love and affection they showed to me.

I acknowledge my indebtedness to my parents, whose prayers have always stood with me. There are many others who have assisted me by prayers and deeds throughout the preparation of my work. I shall be failing in my duty unless I record my gratitude to my brothers, in laws, and relatives, 'for everything', they did for me. I shall always be grateful to each one of them.

Next, with most affection and love I remember my husband Raju, my children Raji and John Mathew, for all the inconveniences they shared with me during the research work. This thesis owes a great deal to them, whose love, persuasion and timely assistance helped me in many a time crisis. In turn I give only one commitment; My life is for them.

Finally, I thank God Almighty who has changed all impossible, to possible in my life. I praise the Lord for carrying me in his hand during this period.

VALSA JOHN C.