

AMDD (2000). “improving emergency obstetric care through criterion-based audit”.

• CARE-USA (2003) “Foundations to Enhance Management of Maternal Emergencies (FEMME), final evaluation reports”.
• K Kiser, (2007), “Passage to India”. Minn Medical, Volume 90, Page10-11
• K D Rao, (2011), “Human Resourses for Health in India Startegies for increasing the availability of qualified health workers in underserved areas”.
• K S Vora (2009) “Maternal Health Situation in India: A Case Study”

• M Cham, J Sundby, S Vangen (2005) “Maternal Mortality in the Rural Gambia, a qualitative study on access to emergency obstetric care”. Reproductive Health page 02-03.

• Oxford journals (2000) “Practical Mother and Child Health in Developing Countries, Professional care of mother and child”

• PS Raman et al., (2004) "Assessing the Regional and District Capacity for Operational zing Emergency Obstetric Care through First Referral Units in Gujarat,"

• R Anthony, R Heaver, et al. (1996) “India’s family welfare program: moving to a reproductive and child”

• USAID (2002) Operationalizing FRUs: Paving way ahead, Article on skilled birth Attendants.

• World Health Organization ( 2008) “Quality Improvement of Maternal and Newborn Health at the First-referral Hospital, Report of the Technical Group Meeting New Delhi, India”

• World Health Organization ( 2004), “Health Situation in South- East Asia Region”.

• Young, F. W. et al. (2006)” Visual Statistics: Seeing your data with Dynamic Interactive Graphics”.
• Z Gill, R Waxman (2000) “Implementation stages of EmOC services, a tool for project monitoring”.

Websites:
• www.mo.hfw.nic.in/
• www.mo.hfw.nic.in/N RHM/ip hs. ht m
• www.mo.hfw.nic.in/N RHM.ht m
• www.gujaratindia.com/
• www.gujhealth.gov.in/
• www.gscbt.co.in/
• www.whoindia.org/
• www.who.int/
• www.unicef.org/india/