ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

Culmination of a research study is never a solitary attempt and I have been fortunate to have brilliant mentors, interlocutors, family and friends both in India and Canada without the assistance of whom this dissertation could not have come to fruition.

First, I owe my deepest gratitude to my guide Prof. Ranjana Harish whose indefatigable energy, sound advice and belief in the relevance of the subject helped me grow academically and personally. I shall always be grateful to her for her deep commitment to my intellectual and academic development.

My co-guide Prof. Chelva Kanaganayagam (University of Toronto) spent several hours discussing my work and providing valuable insights on my project. His serenity, intellectual acuity and witty conversations have been inspirational.

I am grateful to the James Reaney Canadian Studies Centre (Department of English, Gujarat University), and Gujarat University Library for providing the research material for my study. I am deeply indebted to the Canadian Bureau for International Education (CBIE) and the International Council of Canadian Studies, Canada for having given me the opportunity to pursue my research as a Commonwealth Scholar in the University of Toronto. I acknowledge their funding assistance that helped me carry forward my project in Canada. The library resources of the University, especially the Robarts Library helped me gather relevant data and necessary material for my project.

I am grateful to my parents, Mr. D. R. Bhat and Mrs. Sarojini Bhat, for their many years of support, patience, guidance and unconditional love that form the bedrock of my present work. I owe a lot to my husband, Dr. Manjunath Ghate for putting up with me, for his companionship and love that have enriched and enlivened my life; and the centre of my life, my daughter Sharada whose innocence, love and necessary distractions helped me through this amazing journey.

Most importantly, I would like to thank my Goddess for giving me the strength and resources to do what I always want to and for having given me reasons to live and purposes to achieve. I thank all those who conspired to make this project possible.
