ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to my mentor, Prof. P. Rajendra Karmarkar, whose guidance, constructive suggestions, and extraordinary support at various stages of the writing thesis made it possible for me to complete this work.

I would like to express my unmeasured gratitude to my parents, Mother late Suramma, and Father Polayya for encouraging me to soar to highest level of my academic potential.

My profound thanks go to Prof. Rajeswar Mittapalli, Kakatiya University, Warangal and S. Ramu, Head (Retd) Dept. of English, A.M.A.L, Anakapalli, whose wise council and inspiration it would have been impossible for me to finish my thesis work. I gratefully accept my respects to Dr. Y. Somalatha, Head, and Department of English for encouraging me to finish my thesis work.

I am very happy to express my gratitude to Prof. Y. Chinna Rao, JNU, New Delhi, whose help in the form of sending me valuable books made me feel strengthen to complete my thesis.

My friends input cannot be left out. B. Ravi, T. Veera Raju, K. Suresh Kumar, Devi and some good friends, I am really grateful to you all.

I could not but appreciate my brothers and sisters, elder sister Ramanamma, second sister Lakshmi, third sister Ramulamma and forth sister Parvathi and Brother’s-in-law, Prakash, Ramarao, Simon and Police for their caring affection.

I will be an ingrate if I do not recognise my ever sparkling Brothers Narendre Kumar H, Bobby and Mrs. Bobby who during my stay in English and Foreign Languages University, Hyderabad took me as their brother.
I am deeply indebted to the University Grants Commission, New Delhi for awarding me RGNF (Rajiv Gandhi National Fellowship) with which I met the expenditure involved in my research work.

I am also grateful to the Librarian of the English and Foreign Languages University, and British Library, Hyderabad for permitting me to use the Library for several weeks.

Finally, with my whole heart, I express my immense gratitude to the Almighty God, who in His infinite mercy strengthen and saw me throughout the entire period of researching and writing this thesis.