ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

I am deeply indebted to Prof. Kapil Kapoor for his invaluable guidance and keen motivation in the completion of this thesis. His insights into the literary and philosophic issues have been a constant source of inspiration. His ability to translate complex theories into simple ideas has provided a direction for my work. I am grateful to Prof. Kapoor for initiating my interest in Indian philosophy. It has been an honour as well as a pleasure to be a student of such a learned scholar.

I am grateful to the other professors and teachers at the Centre of Linguistics and English for their help. The office staff, especially Mr Rawat, has always been very helpful and cooperative. I would also like to thank Dr. Rajnish Mishra, Assistant Professor in the Department of Sanskrit, for his valuable suggestions.

I would like to express my gratitude to Prof. Prem Singh, Department of Linguistics, Delhi University, for providing the inspiration to undertake research.

My husband, Dr. V.P. Singh, has always been a pillar of support. But for his cooperation and faith in me, I would not have been able to complete my research. Special thanks to my children Ishaan and Anahat for putting up with my busy schedule and understanding the significance of my work. Most of all I am deeply grateful to my parents and especially my parents-in-law for their encouragement and unconditional support.
