Acknowledgement

The thesis is the outcome of my research on the topic titled ‘Dimensions of immigration in Assam during the Colonial period’, covering the period from 1826 to 1947, and mainly focusing on the districts of the Brahmaputra valley, under the guidance of Professor (Dr.) Priyam Goswami, Department of History, Gauhati University. I will always be indebted to her as her constant guidance, supervision, and valuable suggestions helped me tremendously in carrying out of my research.

In carrying out my research, I was helped by a number of institutions and individuals. My acknowledgement and thanks are due to Assam State Archives, Dispur, K. K. Handique Library, Gauhati University, Directorate of Historical and Antiquarian Studies, Panbazar, Guwahati, S. K. Bhuyan Library (Reference Section), Cotton College, Guwahati, District Library, Guwahati, for giving me access to documents and materials in their custody. I am especially thankful to the Indian Council of Historical Research, for enabling me to avail the fellowship for the study. I am also thankful to Mr. Arnab Kashyap, Mr. Hareshwar Baishya, and Mr. Nripen Sharma of the State Archives, Assam, for their help and cooperation.

I am also indebted to my family members more particularly my mother, father, elder sister and my late elder brother Mr. Bedabrata Das who offered me the much needed spiritual and material help in carrying out my research.
