Quest for the unknown and unraveling the mysteries of nature makes us to conquer our fears and expand our imagination with the blessings of the Almighty coupled with a guiding hand. I am thankful to God for whatever he gave me and help me to rise above fears.

I am fortunate to have this guiding hand of my teacher Dr. B. K. Agarwala as my mentor. His unflinching support, encouragement and faith in my potentials since my post graduation days helped me win half the battle when faced with difficulties. Thanks to him to mould my thoughts as a researcher with care and affection and today as I stand at a juncture of my life about to leave this cocooned environment but with a strong belief that lessons learnt in these years from him will stand me in good stead for the life ahead.

I acknowledge the Indian Council of Agricultural Research, New Delhi and Ministry of Agriculture, Govt. of India for financially supporting this work throughout.

Thanks are due to the teachers and staff of the Department of Zoology and life Science who have helped me in several ways for this work to happen. Heartfelt thanks are due to Dr. D. Ghosh, Head, Deptt. of Zoology, who has always encouraged and helped me especially, in the preparation of gels and standardizing enzyme staining procedures.

I acknowledge all the fellows of my lab. for their cooperation especially Dr. Kalpana Das and Mrs Parichita Ray Choudhury for sharing their earlier experiences in such studies, Mrs Jhuma Das for her cooperation during my field collections and morphometric studies, Mr. Joydeb Majumder for analysis of data. Moments shared with them was really fun and pleasant.

The contribution of my family in my life who suffered a lot but supported me through out my Ph. D. work with indulgence is beyond acknowledgement.

Although new to them, I am greatful to my in laws for their support. I save my best wishes and prayers for my husband Dr. Suman Sinha for without his cooperation and support ever since I met him, this work at the last stage was not possible.

Above all my countless salutes to my father who baptized me in the path of knowledge in this birth of mine.
