ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I take this opportunity to thank Dr. Chandrima Shaha for providing me with the chance to work on the topic of my thesis and her immense patience not just with the way I have worked in the last four years but, mainly during the last couple of months, with the writing and re-writing and corrections involved in my thesis. But for her deadlines and constant pushing, I would never have made it on time.

I feel fortunate to be a part of NII not just because of its excellent infrastructure for research but also because of the freedom with which labs exchange information and resources. I thank Dr. Sandip Basu and Dr. Suroliya in their ability as the previous and present Directors of NII. I thank all the members of my Doctoral Committee: Dr. Amitabha Mukhopadhyay, Dr. Pushkar Sharma – especially for the interest and enthusiasm he showed in my first two DC’s; and Dr. Madhulika Srivastava for her patience in helping me untangle some of the knottier problems in cloning. I thank Dr. S. K. Gupta for his support throughout the confusing period of lab change, Dr. Rahul Pal for cheerfully allowing me to disrupt work in his lab, Dr. Subrato Sinha for his critical analysis and inputs to my work, and Dr. Satyajit for his awesome classes.

I would like to specially thank Upadhayay Sir, Sangeeta Maam – I count myself lucky to have met them through Swapna - and Ayub Sir, for being such nice people – even just knowing they are around is an immensely comforting thought! I think I will never stop being grateful to Ayub Sir, one of my favourite people in NII, for that one conversation where he spent a lot of time listening to my gabble and mentally rescued me from the “straw that broke the camel’s back”. I stopped blaming myself for a lot of things that day. I would also like to thank Lalitha Maam for being such a warm and cheerful person. Knowing her is one of the gifts of my “lab change”.

Four years in CDDR have been a mixed experience, but looking back at this period, I find myself thankful for a lot of things – some gifts were intentional, many unintentional – but all very precious. First, I’d like to thank Neelaji – for all his help in my work, for being such a caring and comfortable person, but mainly by just being there as someone I can talk to, tease and fight with, especially in all the lonely times. Second, I’d like to thank DP. But for his constant criticism, his encouragement, and I must say, uncanny resemblance to my own brother, I would never have made it here. I am deeply grateful to him for refusing to let me act like a coward. One other person who deserves all the thanks in the world is my irritating batch-mate cum lab-mate, Jitesh. He is someone I have never been polite to, never agreed with. But every time I have needed to learn or try something new, he has always been there, as a fantabulous teacher, as a great senior! I think he’s like an iceberg, with all his irritating ways only on the surface and just the tip. I am grateful to you for all that I have learnt and all the times you have gone out of your way to help me. I hope u don’t mistake this acknowledgement for a white flag! Knowing Renu in this last year has made up to some extent for the absence of seniors. I admire Ramesh Ji for his mental toughness as well as his thoroughness & commitment to keeping things running in perfect order in a lab like this. But what has meant the most to me is his support during my “negative ECL band” stage. Rohit, I’ve always admired for his thoroughness and organisation; but recently for his courage too. Many of the fun times I had in this lab, right at the beginning, almost always involved him, with his love for weird music, his chronic hyper-excitable state and absolutely unimaginable imagination! Smriti is probably the first kid in lab with her salsa and her “teasability”. Anees, I thank especially for that one day when I deleted a large chunk of my data and his advice on advanced skills with computers and presentation – the banes of my life! I would also like to thank Debjani for helping... me in her own way; Rawat Ji, for always showing me respect and consideration; and KishanPal Ji for his cheery attitude and the toffees! Lastly, I thank Bettina and Ashish – they have played a major role in influencing the nature of my experiences in NII – an unintentional but valuable gift in growing up. I also thank Ashish for his help with JC-1 staining – my first positive result! In the six months in GAL, I thank Neelu Ji and Sanchita for teaching me so much about DNA; Sonica and Deepika for making me belong; and Gagan for being someone I have feared and respected in equal measures!!

I am very grateful to people from three labs – Hybridoma, IEL and CBL. I am especially lucky to know Shruti, and now Richa – two very caring and very nice people. Meena, Rohini, Debjani, Nazish and Abhishek – thank you for so always offering help so readily. A special thanks for Neetu (EBL) for my first successful PCR. A special thanks to Nagarjuna – it was difficult to keep pace with him in the beginning, but I can never forget the effort he put in for my transfectants, especially because his help came at a stage when I most needed it, and it was most difficult for him to give. I thank Babulal, Than Singh Ji and Satish for helping so much during the crazy process of preparing and submitting my thesis.

I’m privileged to have known seniors of the likes of Vikram, Bala, Mohan, Neela, Rama, Yogyata, Omita, Deepika, Ramesh, Anita, Drhuv, Nitin, Smita, Usha, Sangeeta, Kanchan, Joy, Sanchita, Paroma, Anuradha, Radhika and Nagesh. Neeta and Lavanya are the most special seniors I have ever known. I’m equally lucky to have a whole load of great juniors – especially Ravi, Soma, Chothu, Nidhi, Ruchir, Hridesh, Pogo, Beena, TK, Surbhi, Sumod, Divya T, Vikrant and Mami. This list is definitely not exhaustive. A special thanks to Surbhi (Billee) and Stuti for helping me remember the kid in me; to Sabha, Vrinda and Raj for adding mischief to life. Vineeth and Subhashini for the good times and the great food. Punya for the time and effort he put in before my first DC, in helping me conquer my fear of public speaking – something that has been of invaluable help to me; Malu and Srijita for being a lot of fun; and Veenu for being such a nice person. Srikanth, Ankush, Parashu and Mani are four of the most amazing and inspiring people I’ve ever met. No words are enough to describe their niceness. I want to thank them for all the gifts that they’ve given me by just being the way they are. Thapaji, Chandra, Kumar Bhaiya, Sriram, Rajendar kaka, Pappuji, Jawaharji, Ramuji, Darbaanji, Uncleji and the others who make life so simple.

I’ll always treasure moments spent with Srikanth, Pooja, Apama, Nitin, Alka and Swapna. Like Mumtha, Suj, Su, Anu, Beena, Praveen Anna, Jay, Hari, Ninu and Ushas, they are friends worth dying for! My teachers from Stella and IBMS deserve a special mention – they are the best! I am grateful for Thatha – the wind beneath my wings; Pattee, Appa and Amma; Kaiser for all the bites, Baby for the licks, Rufi for the mischief. Waggy, Batty, Splotchy (my son), Kittan, Ginger, Blackie, Odie, Bozo Collins, Fluff and Snuff and all the others – for being ‘all things wise and wonderful’. JNU, the trips and places I’ve been to and the adventures I’ve had through these five years have given me memories to cherish for a long while.

Chitra Ravi
