I came across the grand world of Konjaku Monogatari, a work of the twelfth century, in 1984 through the lectures of Professor Junichi Ikegami in Osaka University. It was an eye-opening discovery that eventually resulted in the present study.

The work of identifying and locating the materials, rendering the English versions and identifying the areas of study was a herculean task. This could only be realised because of the support and encouragement of my family, particularly my husband, Dr. Pawan and children.

I sincerely thank Professor Satya Bhushan Verma for his valuable and untiring guidance towards the completion of this work.

I am also indebted to the Department of Japanology, Osaka University for generously extending the use of the library and other research facilities in Japan for this study.

My thanks are due to Dr. Tomar, Chairman of the Centre for East Asian Languages, Jawaharlal Nehru University for his constant inspiration.

I wish to express a deep sense of gratitude to the late Professor Iwamoto Yutaka of Soka University, and the late Professor Yamori of Osaka University. I also acknowledge the support of Professor Komatsu of Osaka University and Dr. Ved Seth of Delhi University and my colleagues in Japan and India.

Last but not the least, I am obliged to Mrs. Swarup for patiently working and giving shape in its present form to my work.
