Acknowledgements

This thesis would have never been completed without the help provided in so many ways by all the people that I will mention and there are so many others who, though not mentioned, have my gratefulness.

I thank, Dr. Kapil Kapoor and Dr. Franson Manjali, my thesis supervisors whose guidance and encouragement knew no bounds. I will always be grateful towards them and Dr. Kapoor's family for providing all the necessary support. It has been a wonderful experience working under both of them.

Academically, I have benefitted immensely from discussions with Dr. Willie D'Silva, Dept of Sociology, Goa University. I am grateful to him and many others in Goa University for sparing so much time on my thesis. Alito Sequiera and Milan Khanolkar deserve special mention for helping me with the field work in Goa. Shri Vinayak Khedekar (Kala Academy, Goa) was very kind and helpful whenever I required assistance. Ayesha Kidwai (CLE, JNU) who proved to be more than a friend. Her comments and suggestions on the thesis were extremely valuable. Errol, my husband, who cheerfully endured the torture of pouring into material that was nowhere near Macroeconomics, and at the same time offered his comments on the work. Dr. Handoo (CIL, Mysore) made my brief visit to the institute very fruitful. Rahul Roy contributed considerably by offering suggestions on the thesis.
No work is complete without emotional support. And this was provided by my family – my mother, my brother, Bala and my father, whose blessings were the main force behind all this. My in-laws have been magnificent in their encouragement and wishes for the completion. I am especially grateful for the presence of Mum, Dad and Brian, whose concerns have been most touching. Iona, my sister-in-law, and her family made me realize how wonderful it is to be part of this family. Amar and Smiley Kundu, my extended family in Delhi have given me so much of affection. My Uncle, Balmama has been like a father to me, and Arun dada a wonderful brother. My husband Errol has been the real pillar of support throughout. I can never thank him enough.

A ‘Home’ was provided to me by all these people, and their presence has been most touching- Rahul and Ayesha, whose love and care is a rarity and I am lucky to have received it. Praveen and Smita, in whose house I received so much warmth and affection. Sujata Patil, was very kind during my days of illness. Swagata and Budakoti whose presence lit up so many dull days.

I also wish to thank all those friends who kept me going- Sandeepa, Mithi, Shukti, Nattu, Radha, Nupur, Rohan, Mahapatra, Pronob, Aaron, Mrityun, Sangeeta, Nads, Shabari and Lakshmi.

A special thanks to Guru, Anita and Suman for helping me at every step. Rico and Pamela for making me realise that ‘Goa’ is a special place. Peter, Ligia and the rest of the family with whom I’ve spent so many special moments.
I am thankful towards the CIIL, Goa University Library, RTL, (DU), Menezes Braganza (Goa), the Kala Academy library, NSD, Sahitya Academy for all the library assistance. I am particularly grateful to Mr. Mullick (JNU) for his assistance. Rita and Mr. Rawat (CLE) made all the visits to the centre office such a pleasure.

Finally, the people whose presence was inevitable and very-ver special. The people of Naveshim who were supportive throughout my field work. Rahul and Ayesha who helped in getting this thesis in final shape. And my husband, Errol, to whom all I can say is, Cheer up! the folktale has ended. Or has it just begun?
