Acknowledgement

As I submit this thesis titled “Critical Exposition of Toru Dutt’s Poetry As a Study of East-West Assimilation,” for evaluation by esteemed examiners for the award of the degree of Doctor of Philosophy in English, and sit back in a moment of languor, gratitude wells up within me for those without whom it would have been an onerous task extra-regarding my faculties and with whose help and encouragement it has been a pleasurable journey tracing the footmarks of one among the pioneers of Indo-Anglian poetry.

Silent supplication rises in my heart for the Almighty whose grace has always seen me through thick and thin.

My gratitude knows no bounds for my guide and mentor Dr. A.A. Khan, Sr. Assistant Professor (English), Govt. College, Utai (Durg). A gentleman to the core, he stood by me through everything and with unflagging patience.

I am indebted to Dr. Qamar Talat, Assistant Professor (English), Govt. V.Y.T. PG Autonomous College, Durg, for her invaluable suggestions and for her gentle push at times whenever my energies abated.

I pay humble regards to Dr. N.P. Dixit, Principal, Govt. V.Y.T. PG Autonomous College, Durg, for magnanimity of mind and heart.

Sincere thanks are due to Dr. G.P. Dubey, Head, Department of English, Govt. V.Y.T. PG Autonomous College, Durg, whose motivation and scholarly guidance through all stages of research eased my path considerably.

My humble salutations to Dr. A.Q. Khan, Professor, (Retd.) Govt. Arts and Science College, Durg; he has been a beacon of light to me and to numerous scholars and students of English.
My obligation towards Dr. Sameer Thakur, Administrator, Maharaja Agrasen International College, Raipur, can scarcely be expressed in words. It is due to his ungrudging help despite hectic schedule that I could wade unhindered through so perilous a journey.

I do gratefully acknowledge all help and support I have received from Prof. J.P. Sharma, Principal, RCST, Durg, without which the present work would have seen light of the day at a much later date, and I thank all my colleagues at RCST for their unwavering support.

Here, I do remember with grateful acknowledgement Mrs. K. Swami, Assistant Professor (English), for inculcating in me the love of English language and literature.

I would also like to convey my gratefulness to Shri R.C. Singh, Chief Education Officer, (Retd.) Bhilai Steel Plant; he has been a source of inspiration to me since school days.

I also express my appreciation for Shri A. Dinakar, Librarian, SCILET, Madurai, for his promptness whenever there arose the need for his assistance.

Special thanks to my bosom friends Sachin and Pradeep whose good humoured goading spurred me on to complete the research despite impediments.

Blessings and benediction of my parents Shri R.C. Bagchi and Smt. B. Bagchi is the manna from heaven which has paved the way for success in all endeavours of life, and I earnestly acknowledge the role of my elder brother Dr. Shubhashish Bagchi, the friend and philosopher whose unerring judgement has always shown me the right path. The rest is 'love's labour.'

B. Utpal