The importance of small scale industry in the Indian economy cannot be overstated.

Though lot of work has been done on various aspects relating to small scale industry, the complementarity between large and small scale industry has not attracted as much attention. The co-existence of small scale and the large scale industrial sectors, needs to be viewed in the context of an integrated scalar structure of industries. In this thesis we have attempted to apply this approach.

My deepest debt of gratitude is to Prof. K.K. Subrahmanian, my supervisor, without whose constant encouragement and guidance, I would have never been able to finish this work. The discussions with him on various aspects of the problem were not only enlightening but also made me aware of many other dimensions of the problem.

I have also benefitted from discussions with various other faculty members of Sardar Patel Institute of Economics and Social Research. I would specially like to express my thanks to Prof. S.P. Kashyap who took deep interest in my work. My thanks are also due to Prof. M.S. Trivedi and Prof. Murthy.

I acknowledge the help given by various officials in different departments of Government of Gujarat in data collection and clarification of certain definitions and concepts. I would like to specifically thank the officials of Bureau of Economics and Statistics, Gandhinagar and Small Industries Service Institute, Ahmedabad who willingly supplied some unpublished data to me.

I am also thankful to respondents of the questionnaire for my field study, who patiently replied to my lengthy and probing queries relating to their business operations.

My grateful thanks to friends like Jayashreeben, Chetan, Surjeet, Keval Ram, Hinal and Anil, Rakesh and Jeemol who helped me in various ways. Mr. Y.V. Pantulu provided computer assistance. I thank him on this count.

In the earlier phase of this study I had made use of the UGC fellowship. I am thankful to Gujarat University for providing this assistance. Later part of the work was done while I was working with Sardar Patel Institute. Here I would specially like to express my grateful thanks to the Director of Sardar Patel Institute, Dr. Y.K. Alagh who relieved me of part of my institute duties and facilitated the progress of my work to a great extent. I would also like to thank the staff - library as well as administrative - of the Institute who provided a congenial environment and favourable infrastructure for completing this work.

Finally, my thanks to Mr. Sateesan, Mr. Madhavan and Miss Bhavani who typed the final draft of the thesis at very short notice.
