Acknowledgement

I express my gratitude to my supervisor Professor Kamal Mitra Chenoy. He is the sole reason for the completion of my PhD. His words of encouragement have always given me immense confidence. Professor Chenoy has been generous and had lent me a great deal of academic freedom to work. His critical and incisive comments have enriched my thesis at every stage.

Dr Y. Vincent Kumara Doss, Department of History, Madras Christian College, Chennai deserves the credit for provoking me initially with his characteristic bluntness.

I also thank Dr A. Gangatharan, Department of History, Banaras Hindu University. My conversations with him over the years have shaped my views on Indian culture and society. Ganga, apart from being an inspiration, has introduced me to many new ideas and debates.

Dr J. Madhan Mohan, CIPOD, SIS, JNU has been instrumental in moulding my thoughts. My discussions with him over the years has not only shaped my understanding of politics but also instilled the virtues of writing.

The Staff of JNU Library, IDSA Library and American Council Library deserve gratitude for their co-operation.

The love and affection of my father K. Dinakaramohan and mother A. Maniyammal has been a pillar of strength to me. They made a great deal of sacrifice to support my education in every possible way. My grandparents through their unlimited love and care strengthened me all these years. My brother D. Sivagurunathan stood by me on every occasion, besides fulfilling all my needs. My sister D. Jayanthi had shown great care in my well-being and growth. It is a blessing for me to have them as siblings.

M. S. Prathibha continues to support and encourage me. A. Arun Prashanth has long been a source of enthusiasm. I acknowledge Deepak Yadav, CHS, for his invaluable contribution in the final stages of my thesis work. I also acknowledge Pawan Mathur for his selfless contribution here. I also remember my other friends V. Siva Sankar, K. Thirunavukarasu, Kathiresan and Ramya Devi on this occasion. I also thank Mrs Lalitha Jeganathan for her hospitality and concern.

The Mess Staff, Cashier Nautiyalji and other office staff, Lakshmi Didi and security guards of Sabarmati Hostel are remembered for their co-operation during my stay there.
