ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I have developed a number of debts in writing this thesis to those who extended to me their scholastic suggestions, intellectual insights, moral encouragements and psychological support. I gratefully acknowledge the inspiration, encouragement and guidance that I received from my supervisor Prof. Anand Kumar during the course of my PhD and even throughout my JNU career. It has been very difficult to write a thesis on the topic which has little relevant literature. I am indebted to him for his loving inspiration and wise counsel, which has brought my work into a concrete shape. I earnestly acknowledge his contribution. Despite his very busy schedule; his thorough inspections and subsequent valuable feedbacks have added much value to this work and helped me avoid many mistakes and organise the data I gathered from the field. His strict but cooperative and affectionate behaviour has helped establishing excellent pedagogue - pupil camaraderie and smooth running of this research. Without his deep insight this thesis would not have been a reality. He has been a fatherly figure for me. He and his family have extended to me all kinds of intellectual and emotional support during my JNU days. In fact, he has not just taught me how to write a thesis, but also how to lead a life. I owe a great debt to him. Thank you Professor and Madam Kumar for your kind help, love and affection. I will be indebted to you forever.

I have also accumulated a debt of gratitude to many people in different fields for their most pertinent comments and suggestions in my research work. Although it is not possible to mention them all, it will be an act of disrespect if I don’t mention Prof. Y. Singh, Prof T.K.Oommen, Prof. Tiplut Nongbri, Dr. Amit Sharma, Dr. Nilika Mehrotra, Prof. Ehsanul Haq, Prof. Susan Visvanathan, Prof Nandu Ram, Prof. Dipankar Gupta, , Prof. Maitrayee Choudhuri, Prof. Surinder Jodhka, Dr. V. Sujata, Prof M.N. Panini, and all other faculties and my teachers of CSSS. I am grateful to Prof. Avijit Pathak for his valuable suggestions. I thank Mr. Bharat Kumar of the centre for his support. I am also thankful to Prof. Ajay Patnaik, my M.Phil supervisor, Prof. Sanjay Pandey and all the faculties of Centre for Russian and Central Asian Studies. I am grateful to Prof. Jan Aart Scholte, University of Warwick, for his very valuable feedbacks.

I am thankful to the staff of the JNU Library, the IDSA Library, the American Centre Library, Nehru Memorial Library and CSSS-CAS Library, Development Commissioner’s (Handicrafts) office library, R.K.Puram; New Delhi, Craft Museum Library; Pragati Maidan, NCDS Library;
BBSR, Orissa State Library, Bhubaneswar State Museum Library, for all their help and cooperation. Besides, I sincerely appreciate the help extended to me by number of artisans of Pipili and Government Officials (P.K. Mallik, Director; Export Promotion Council, Pradip Mohanty and other staff, Director; Cottage Industries, Orissa, Bibekanand Sahoo and other staff, Manager-Marketing, OSCHC, and other staff, etc.), during the course of my field work.
