I would like to thank Prof. Neeladri Bhattacharya, my supervisor, for his guidance and encouragement through the course of my research. His critical interventions have been extremely helpful in rethinking and formulating my arguments.

I am also grateful to Dr. Aditya Nigam for agreeing to be my co-supervisor and for many intellectually stimulating conversations. His encouragement and support have been of immense value.

I am thankful to Centre for the Study of Developing Societies-Indian Council of Social Science Research for the grant of a Doctoral Fellowship.

I am extremely grateful to the staff of State Archives, Assam, Guwahati, Manipur State Archives, Imphal and National Archives of India, New Delhi for their assistance and help while conducting my archival work. I also acknowledge a debt of gratitude to the staff of the following libraries: Jawaharlal Nehru University’s Central Library, Centre for Historical Studies Library; Centre for the Study of Developing Societies Library, Delhi; Nehru Memorial Museum & Library, New Delhi; University of Delhi Arts Library; The Ratan Tata Library, Delhi; Department of Historical and Antiquarian Studies in Assam, Guwahati; Kamrup Anusandhan Samiti, Guwahati; Gauhati University Library; Indian Council of Historical Research, North-East Regional Centre Library, Guwahati; Manipur University Library, State Central Library, Manipur.

Through the course of my research, I have been fortunate to have teachers, friends, acquaintances, co-travellers and adversaries, who have enriched my work, sharpened my debates, and inspired me to greater effort.

A thank you also to my friends – who know the invaluable role they have played, in their own singular ways, in my work and more importantly, in the very sustenance of my being. I apologise for not acknowledging them by name.

And none of this would have been possible without the unconditional love and support of my large extended family.
