Chapter Six
Implications

The following broad implications are on the basis of the study.

1. Traditional craft i.e. block printing is one of the important traditions in the region which needs to be preserved as tradition as well as culture and status in the society.

2. This traditional craft can be a source of employment generation for relief to unemployed rural people.

3. Vidarbha being main producer of cotton and Block Printing is taken only on cotton cloth; it can flourish small scale industries in rural Vidarbha.

4. On large scale application it may open doors in industrial developed.

5. Presently 1% population is employed in the traditional craft; if block printing can be employment to at least 10 % population of the region, then it will be a milestone in social and economic reforms.
