Chapter One

The 'Golding Novel'

1. 1.1 Introduction .................................................. 1
2. 1.2 Life and Influences ........................................... 5
3. 1.3 Range and Diversity of Golding's Work ................. 10
4. 1.4.1 The 'Golding Novel' ....................................... 12
5. 1.4.2 Golding's Concern with Man ............................. 13
6. 1.4.3 Isolated Settings of the Plots ......................... 15
7. 1.4.4 The Moment of Confrontation for Golding Protagonists 17
8. 1.4.5 'Gimmick' Ending of Golding's Novels .............. 19
9. 1.4.6 Use of Literary Foils ..................................... 21
10. 1.5 Conclusion .................................................... 26
11. References ........................................................... 30

Chapter Two

The Initial 'Golding Novel': Experimental Phase

1. 2.1.1 Introduction .................................................. 32
2. 2.1.2 'Golding Novel': The Stages ............................. 35
3. 2.1.3 The Initial Stage of the 'Golding Novel': Its Two Phases 38
4. 2.1.4 Common Features of Golding's Novels of the Initial Stage 42
5. 2.2.1 Novels of the 'experimental phase' .................. 46
6. 2.2.2 Lord of the Flies: The Plot ............................... 51
7. 2.2.3 Ironical Reversal at the End of the Novel ............ 53
8. 2.2.4 Fable as an Element in *Lord of the Flies ........... 55
2.2.6 Allegory in the Novel ........................................... 60
2.2.6 Lord of the Flies as Realistic Fiction ...................... 63
2.2.7 The Mythopoetic Aspect of Lord of the Flies ............. 66
2.2.8 Polysemous Nature of the Novel ............................ 72
2.3.1 New Possibilities in The Inheritors ....................... 73
2.3.2 The Inheritors : The Plot .................................... 76
2.3.3 Irony in the Novel ............................................. 78
2.3.4 Fictional Element in The Inheritors ....................... 79
2.3.5 Allegorical Significance of the Novel ..................... 82
2.3.6 Myth in The Inheritors ....................................... 85
2.3.7 Coherent Generic Status of The Inheritors ............... 89
2.4.1 The Thematic Continuity in Pincher Martin ............... 91
2.4.2 Pincher Martin : The Plot ................................... 91
2.4.3 Fictional Element in the Novel ............................ 92
2.4.4 Ironical Reversal in the Novel ............................. 95
2.4.5 The Fable in Pincher Martin ................................ 96
2.4.6 Allegory in the Novel ....................................... 97
2.4.7 Affinity of the Novel to a Morality Play .................. 99
2.4.8 Mythic Element in Pincher Martin ......................... 100
2.4.9 Semantic and Generic Complexity of Pincher Martin ..... 103
2.5 Conclusion ....................................................... 107
References ......................................................... 111
CHAPTER THREE

TRANSITIONAL PHASE

3.1.1 Description
3.1.2 Novels of the 'transitional phase'
3.1.3 The Nature of Transition

3.2.1 The Plot of Free Fall
3.2.2 Element of Irony in the Novel
3.2.3 Thematic Continuity with the Earlier Novels
3.2.4 The Element of Obscurity in Free Fall
3.2.5 The Metaphorical and the Extra-fictive Element in the Novel
3.2.6 Myth as a Significant Device of Authorial Quest
3.2.7 Transition in Free Fall

3.3.1 The Spire
3.3.2 The Plot of The Spire
3.3.3 Irony in the Novel
3.3.4 Relevance of the Novel's Theme to Golding's Quest

3.4.1 Initial Stage of the 'Golding Novel': an Assessment
3.4.2 Characterization of the Initial Stage
3.4.3 Narrative Technique and Point of View
3.4.4 Authorial Vision at the end of the Initial Stage

3.5 Conclusion

References
CHAPTER FOUR

GOLDING'S SOCIAL NOVEL: MORAL PHASE

4.1.1 Introduction ................................................................. 198
4.1.2 Golding's Moral Position ............................................. 200
4.1.3 The Pyramid: A Shift in Golding's Approach ................... 204
4.2.1 The Source and the Structure of The Pyramid ................... 211
4.2.2 The Plot ................................................................. 215
4.2.3 Inverted Symbolism in The Pyramid ............................... 220
4.2.4 The Pyramid as a Novel of the moral phase ..................... 228
4.3.1 The Second Trilogy of the moral phase: The Scorpion God .... 231
4.3.2 Thematic Linkages: The Scorpion God and The Pyramid ....... 235
4.3.3 The Structure of The Scorpion God ................................. 236
4.4.1 The Plot ................................................................. 249
4.4.2 The Significance of The Scorpion God ............................. 251
4.5.1 The Plot of Envoy Extraordinary ................................... 255
4.5.2 The Significance of the Novella .................................... 257
4.6.1 Change as the Central Motif in Clonk Clonk ..................... 264
4.6.2 The Significance of Clonk Clonk .................................... 267
4.7 Conclusion ........................................................................ 269

References ............................................................................. 288
CHAPTER FIVE

THE "METAPHYSICAL PHASE"

5.1.1 Introduction ..................................................... 292
5.1.2 Novels of the "Metaphysical Phase" .................. 293
5.2.1 Significant Position of Darkness Visible ............... 302
5.2.2 The Structure of the Novel .......................... 303
5.2.3 Darkness Visible: the Plot .................. 309
5.2.4 Elusive Nature of Reality in the Novel .......... 313
5.2.5 Ambiguity and Coincidence as Novelistic Devices 315
5.2.6 Other Structural and Narrative Devices ....... 319
5.2.7 Darkness Visible: Concluding Statement .... 333
5.3.1 From Darkness Visible to The Paper Men .......... 337
5.3.2 The Plot of The Paper Men .................. 344
5.3.3 Significance of Barklay's Death .................. 348
5.3.4 The Faustio-Nephotephelean Element in The Paper Men 353
5.3.5 Structural and narrative Features of the Novel 365
5.3.6 Relevance of Barklay's "Metaphysical Encounter" 373
5.4 Conclusion ............................................. 382
References ..................................................... 394

CHAPTER SIX

6(A) FINAL PHASE

6.1 Introduction ..................................................... 398
6.2.1 The Plot of A Sea Trilogy .......................... 399
6.2.2 The Structure ................................................................. 409
6.2.3 The Thematic Potential of A Sea Trilogy ........................................ 418
6.2.4 A Point of Convergence: Final Work of the Social Stage .................. 429
6.3.1 Social Stage of the 'Golding Novel': An Assessment ......................... 435
6.3.2 Characterization in the Novels of the Social Stage ......................... 437
6.3.3 Narrative Technique and Point of View .................................... 451
6.3.4 A Sea Trilogy as a Paradigm of the 'Golding Novel' ......................... 469
6(B) CONCLUSION ........................................................................ 486
References .................................................................................. 502