ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

At the outset let me take this opportunity to acknowledge the grace of God without whom this work could not have successfully accomplished. In completing this thesis, I am indebted to people whose encouragement and supports have meant a great deal to me.

I would like to express my grateful appreciation to my supervisor Prof. Dr. Sanhita Athawale for her supervision, constructive suggestions, encouragement, and concern during the course of this thesis. She inspired me with her special way of thinking and researching. I am very proud to be one of her students and I would also like to follow her steps as a successful and talented academician and researcher.

Grateful appreciation is expressed to Prof. Dr. Dhanmanjiri Sathe, Head of Economics Department for the encouragement and for providing me an opportunity to work and use all the facilities in the Department required for completing this work. I would like to express my greatest appreciation to all known and unknown persons who have helped me in completing my work.

I would like to express my greatest appreciation to the University of Pune, India for giving me the opportunity to continue the course of this thesis here. I extend my appreciation to Administrative Staff of Pune University.

I would also like to thank Gokhale Institute of Politics and Economics for providing me books and information on this subject.

Special appreciation is extended to my family. They have provided me invaluable love, care, and support throughout my whole life. I also wish to acknowledge the support of my family in Iran.

Last, but not least, I extend my love and appreciation, to my dearest wife Dr. Azadeh Hamoon, for her continuous patience, support, and encouragement during the course of this thesis. I would like to thank my sweet little son Erfan, who has always been supportive through his smile during the difficult time of writing of this thesis. I can never repay to my wife for her support, encouragement, and love which she has given during the time of this study.
