Acknowledgements

Mahatma Gandhi University and Indian Institute of Technology Kanpur for providing me the facilities to carry out this research;

Professor Rajan Gurukkal, for his out of the way help without which this project would not have been possible;

Professor B. N. Patnaik, my thesis supervisor, for his guidance, constant encouragement and all the help he provided;

Dr. Nizar and all the faculty members of School of Social Sciences, Mahatma Gandhi University, for helping me in all possible ways;

Professors R.R. Barthwal, K.K. Saxena, and A.K. Sinha of the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, IIT Kanpur, for allowing me to use the departmental facilities;

Professors Prabha Sharma and H.C. Karnik of IIT Kanpur for all the help and support they gave;

Dr. Achla Misri Raina for the interest she showed in my work and for many useful suggestions;

Mr. Babu of School of Social Sciences, Mahatma Gandhi University and Mr. D.K. Srivastav of the Department of Humanities and Social Sciences, IIT Kanpur, for helping me out on several occasions;

Professor V.R.P. Nayar for introducing me to Linguistics, Professor Barbara Lust for initiating me into the field of Anaphora and Professor Sreedevi for bringing me into Computational Linguistics;

Professor Ruslan Mitkov, an Anaphora Resolution expert, for rendering all the help and in particular, providing me with the material that was not easily available;

Professor Lila Krishnan for her support and love;

Drs Shikha, Sanil, Tomy and Jha for their concern and help;

Mr. Narasimhan and Mrs Padma Narasimhan for their wholehearted support and good will;
Richa and Anita for providing the Hindi data;

Rita, Pratima, Beena, Queeny, Hazel and George for their care and affection and Mridula, Anuradha, Bindu, Maymole, Govind and Sangeeta for making my stay in the campus a memorable one;

Sailaja, Puranjoy, Deepa and Toppy and Sandeep, for being with me and putting up with my oscillating moods;

Brijlalji for all the help and the numerous cups of tea;

Leher and Simi for the immense support and help they gave without which this work would not have been possible;

Ashwin, Kavita, Krishna and Ani, Prabha and Mohan, for their affection and constant support; and finally but immensely, Dado and Mamma, for love, understanding and support throughout. To them this work is dedicated with love.

Sobha L.