I am deeply indebted to several individuals who helped me in the writing of this thesis. I wish to place on record my deep debt of gratitude, first of all to Dr. C.V. Cheriyan, my research supervisor, formerly Professor and Head, Department of International Relations, (presently Dean, Faculty of Social Sciences), Mahatma Gandhi University, Kottayam, Kerala State. He has given me the benefit of his knowledge, and proper guidance and positive encouragement at every stage of the preparation of this study. I thank my friends Mr. Chris Tremewan (New Zealand), Ms. Nelun Gunasekara (Sri Lanka) and Mr. Clement John (Hong Kong) for their generous assistance in obtaining valuable data and conducting field study in the Philippines. Also, I acknowledge the assistance given by Mrs. Marion Best who arranged research facilities for me at the University of British Columbia, Canada. Thanks are also due to the authorities of different University libraries and documentation centres where I carried out my research -- University of the Philippines (Manila), Ecumenical Movement for Justice and Peace Documentation Centre (Manila), Task Force of Detainees in the Philippines Documentation Centre, (Manila), Institute of Southeast Asian Studies (Singapore), University of British Columbia (Canada), Project Ploughshares Documentation Centre (Canada), Columbia University (New York), Library of Congress (Washington D.C.), DAGA Documentation Centre (Hong Kong), Moscow State Institute of International Affairs (Moscow), Amnesty International Documentation Library (London), Jawaharlal Nehru University (New Delhi), Centre for Development Studies (Trivandrum), Indian Institute of Regional Development Studies (Kottayam), and Mahatma Gandhi University (Kottayam, Kerala). The acknowledgements would not be complete without thanking some other friends -- Mr. G.R. Karatt, Mr. Binny Thomas, Mrs. Vijaya Surender for their assistance.

I also wish to thank my numerous friends in the Philippines and elsewhere for their encouragement and support especially in obtaining materials for my research. And most of all I thank The Revd. Dr. M.A. Thomas who has been a great source of inspiration for me in my task of completing this research.
