ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

Many distinguished psychologists, educationists, teachers, fellow researchers, students and friends rendered generous help, co-operation, critical comments and above all their love and affection in finalizing the present work. For me it is a million dollar question as to how to express my gratitude to each of them. However, their help and association always proved a valuable source of inspiration while conceiving, nursing, modifying and improving the ideas incorporated in this humble venture. My activist and non-activist respondents were always a treat to watch and ponder upon. In fact, I have learnt a lot from their opportune association.

Dr. M.L. Lidhoo — my philosopher-friend, a lovable and an affectionate teacher whose guidance was not only unparallel but meticulous too, deserves my thanks much beyond the scope of my poor vocabulary. Without his keen interest, intellectual stimulation, critical comments and warm friendly environs evinced at every stage, it would have been very difficult for this thesis to see the light of the day. However, deficiencies if any, in this thesis are largely due to my own limitations and errors of judgement.
To my teachers in the faculty of Education, particularly Prof. (Dr.) Agha Ashraf Ali, Dean and Head, who were kind enough to facilitate my work in one way or the other, I owe a debt of gratitude to them all.

I have been benefitted immensely while pursuing the work at various stages of its formulation by eminent and distinguished scholars at national level who offered unreservedly their constructive and valuable tips. Among those Prof. R.N. Mehrotra and Prof. Sunitee Dutt of CIE, New Delhi; Prof. J.N. Joshi of Punjab University, Chandigarh, Prof. Baqer Mehdhi and Mr. Kuldeep Kumar of NCERT, New Delhi deserve special gratitude and words of appreciation.

Thanks are also due to Mr. Khursheed Ahmad Reshi, Dr. Mohd. Sultan, Dr. A.Z. Amani and Mr. Mohd. Amin Lone for their friendly gesture and sincerity while helping me in compilation and annotation work.

The completion of any academic work, how-so-ever simple it may be becomes a herculean proposition, if it is devoid of love, affection and blessings of elders. In this context, my mother, sister and relatives deserve special mention who always beckoned me towards the right virtues and thereby helped me to maintain my enthusiasm. I wish them all many more days of happiness and guardianship.
I shall be failing in my duty if I do not mention my forebearing wife who while enduring all the strains and travails of being a research scholar became an emblem of peace, tranquility and inspiration for me and thus helped to keep my spirit fair, clean and pious throughout my chosen path. For all this, she is whole-heartedly and profusely thanked.

Lastly, Mr. Mohd. Sidiq Dar deserves thanks, for typing out this thesis with meticulous care under extreme time pressure.
