A STUDY IN GENERAL AND SELECTIVE CREDIT CONTROL
(With special reference to India)

CONTENTS

CHAPTER I : STATEMENT OF THE PROBLEM:

i) Credit and Credit Analysis

ii) The Ambit of Credit Control

iii) Scheme of the present thesis.

CHAPTER II: CREDIT POLICIES (Part I):

The evolution of monetary policy.

Cheap money policy in England, America and credit policy in some other countries.

CHAPTER III: MECHANICS OF CREDIT CONTROL:

Introduction:

i) The traditional weapons for general credit control.

ii) The mechanism for the selective control of credit.

iii) Test Tube Devices.

CHAPTER IV: WIDENING THE RADIUS OF SHORT TERM CREDIT CONTROL IN INDIA:

i) The question of branch banking

ii) Amalgamation

iii) The reorganisation of the indigenous banking system

iv) Remittance facilities

v) The organisation of a bill market.
CHAPTER V: SELECTIVE CONTROL OF INVESTMENT CAPITAL IN INDIA:

i) Control of capital market in India.
   A) Special Financing Bodies
   B) Controls of the asset portfolio of some of the institutional investors by statutory provisions.
   C) Managing Agents: Investment trust and the selective distribution of resources.

ii) Rural Finance.

iii) Government and the capital market.

CHAPTER VI: DYNAMICS OF SAVINGS IN AN UNDERDEVELOPED ECONOMY (WITH SPECIAL REFERENCE TO SAVING AS A PROBLEM OF CONFIDENCE.).

Introduction:

i) Saving and the problem of capital formation

ii) The Company Law

iii) The Banking Law

iv) The Insurance Law

v) Co-operative Societies Acts

vi) Conditions for the efficient working of stock and commodity markets.
CHAPTER VII: CREDIT POLICIES (Part II):

Deficit financing cheap money policy and price behaviour.

The Nature of Deficit Spending:
(a) without stability
(b) with stability.

CONCLUSION: