Impact of Community Development Programme

on the Rural Economy of

NORTHERN MAHAKOSHAL (M. P.)

CONTENTS

Preface.

CHAPTER I

Introduction.

The importance of the problem.
Scope of the study.
Concepts and methodology used.
Limitations and the difficulties realised.

CHAPTER II

Rural India and the Place of Community Development Programme.

Importance of the rural economy in India's economic progress.
Need for agricultural break-through.
Inputs and institutional factors in agriculture.
An integrated approach called for.
Survey of isolated and unrelated steps prior to community development programme.
An integrated and planned programme called for.

CHAPTER III

Evolution of the Theory of Community Development Movement.

Evolution of the methods of community development programme.
The meaning of the term and the genesis of the Indian programme.
Objectives and functions of community development programme.
Its critical analysis.
Its limitation and scope.
Its relation to other aspects of rural life and its adequacy-economic, social and cultural.
CHAPTER IV

Working of the Community Development Programme in India and its Finance.

Main features of the programme in India, and their critical study.
People's participation.
The community development programme and its various stages.
National Extension Service Organisation and Indian Extension.
Administration of the programme.
Official wing and people's organisation.
Need of coordination.
Financing the programme.

79-110

CHAPTER V

Evaluation of the Working of the Community Development Programme.

Need of evaluation.
Various type of studies on C.D. programme and their importance.
Programme Evaluation Organisation (P.E.O.)
The Balwant Rai Mehta Committee Report and its main recommendations.
The report of U.N. Evaluation Mission.
Dr. Carl Taylor's view on the programme.
Dr. Ensminger's view and J.P. Committee.
The Nandlal Joshi Committee report on community development in M.P.
The Annual Conferences on community development and Estimate Committee report.
Reserve Bank of India's Evaluation.
National Institute of Community development and its contribution.

111-138

PART II

CHAPTER VI

Physical Features of Northern Mahakoshal.

Community Development Blocks in it.

Physical features, river system, rain-fall and climate, Soil, Land utilisation and cropping pattern, Distribution of the population between urban and rural areas, sex ratio, Community Development blocks in the region and in M.P. during five year plans, Number of blocks according to their stages, Transport and marketing facilities, Education and public health, Financial structure.

139-166
CHAPTER VII

Agriculture and Animal Husbandry in the area prior to Community Development Programme.

Introduction.

CHAPTER VIII

Awareness of the People about C.D.P. and Programme of Agriculture.

Awareness of the people towards C.D.P. Agricultural problems in the region. Main crops grown in the area. Improved methods and implements of cultivation. Distribution of improved seeds, chemical fertilisers and their use by the farmers. Area under improved seeds and fertilisers. Irrigation facilities in the block area and rise in irrigation compared to cultivated area. Irrigation in the villages under study. Soil conservation and land reclamation. 188-230

CHAPTER IX

Animal Husbandry in the area Under study.

CHAPTER X

Need of the study of the impact.
Impact of the programme on the various agricultural activities and programmes related to animal husbandry.
Problems and suggestions.
Impact on the paper.
246-266

CHAPTER XI

Analysis and Impact of the programme OF Rural Industries on employment and Other aspects.

General Introduction. Need of rural industries.
Rural industries in the region surveyed prior to inception of the programme.
Industrial Pilot Projects.
Crafts in the area under study.
Introduction of new crafts. Training.
Supply of raw material and equipments.
Conclusion and general impact.
267-286

CHAPTER XII

(A)

Health and Medical Facilities in the Area

Health problems in the regions.
Rural water supply. construction of new wells.
Improved latrines and drainage system.
Hospital, dispensaries and other health institutions in the region.
Maternity and child welfare centres.
Family planning programme in the blocks and villages. People's attitude.
Conclusion and suggestions.
287-305

CHAPTER XII

(B)

General Education in the area surveyed.

Introduction. Schools in the blocks.
Number of teachers and their training.
Educational facilities in villages.
School buildings and their construction.
Re-creational facilities in the schools.
Villager's attitude towards education.
Impact of educational facilities.
306-316
Impact of Community Development Programme
on the Rural Economy of
NORTHERN MAHAKOSHAL (M. P.)

CHAPTER XII

(C) Social Education in the area under study.
Meaning and aim of social education.
Number of social education institutions in the blocks under study.
Youth clubs. Adult literacy.
People's attitude towards social education.
Village Volunteer's Force. 317-329

CHAPTER XII

(D) Co-operation in the Area under Study.
Introduction.
Number and types of co-operatives.
Increase in the number of societies.
Membership in the co-operatives.
Details of co-operatives in the blocks:
Credit, farming, industrial and other societies and their number, financial position and loans advanced.
Suggestions. 330-347

CHAPTER XII

(E) Transport and Communication facilities.
General introduction.
Communication facilities in the blocks and villages under study. 348-351

CHAPTER XII

(F) Democratic Decentralisation and Leadership.
Meaning and general introduction.
Panchayat Raj in Madhya Pradesh.
Gram and Nyaya Panchayats in the region.
People's attitude towards Panchayat Raj.
Problems and Suggestions.
Leadership- General introduction.
Leadership in the villages surveyed and people's attitude towards leadership.
Conclusion and suggestions. 352-378

CHAPTER XIII
Section: - I
Problems of Administration in C.D.P.
Importance of the administration in C.D.P.
Number of Extension Officers in the blocks and their qualification.
The attitude of extension officers towards problems and success achieved in the various activities of C.D. programme.
Withdrawal of the post of Block Development Officer and re-actions towards it. (contd.)
CHAPTER XIII (Contd.) Other problems and suggestions. Village level worker and their attitude towards community development programme and their problems and suggestions. Lady village level worker. 379-406

CHAPTER XIII Section II. Social Change. Its meaning and importance. Community development programme - an agency of social change. People's attitude towards C.D. programme. Change in the various social issues and values of the villagers after the inception of the programme. 407-418

CHAPTER XIV Summary and Conclusions. 419-456

Appendix.

Bibliography.

List of the villages surveyed.