ACKNOWLEDGEMENTS

I am deeply indebted to my teacher, Professor S.C. Dube for supervising my work and providing stimulating suggestions throughout the preparation of this dissertation. In spite of pressing preoccupations in his capacity as the Director of the Indian Institute of Advanced Study, Simla and subsequent assignment as the Vice-Chancellor of Jammu University, the teacher in Professor Dube ungrudgingly spared time to give patient hearing to my arguments and doubts. I have greatly benefited from my discussions with him. His comments and criticism have always been illuminating.

I wish to record my gratitude to Professor (Mrs) Leela Dube, now in the Institute of Rural Management, Anand, from whom I received basic training in field-research and the techniques of data-processing during the preparation of my Master's dissertation. I received insights about synthesising theories with the facts of empirical realities from Dr S.D. Badgaiyan, Reader in the Department of Sociology, University of Delhi.

I take this opportunity to express my deep-felt thanks to Dr S. Saraf, Head of the Department of Anthropology and Sociology for helping me to secure study leave and other facilities as well as for very helpful discussions which were a source of valuable encouragement to me. I must acknowledge my sincere thanks to colleagues and students in the Department for their personal concern over the completion of my work. I am particularly thankful to Mr M.Y. Khan and Mr Mahmood Ali for their help in drawing map and preparing charts.

I owe a great personal debt to Professor S. Mallikarjunan, of the Department of English here, for carefully going through the manuscript. The discussions with Professor Mallikarjunan helped to develop powers of self-criticism. My personal thanks are due to Professor A. Mishra of the Philosophy Department for his sympathy and affectionate encouragement.

Thanks are also due to the University Grants Commission, New Delhi for awarding a research fellowship and the Indian Council of Social Science Research, New Delhi for providing a short-term teacher-fellowship for the completion of this work. Tabulations were done in the Computer Centre of the University of Delhi. Mr. M.K. Dixit, I.A.S., the then Collector, Bilaspur District, helped me procure official papers and documents. I sincerely thank Mr G.P. Rai for doing carefully the laborious job of typing out the thesis.

Mrs Pushpa Gouraha, besides relieving me from the burden of household-chores, assisted also in data-processing and proof-reading.

And, in the end, I acknowledge my thanks and gratitude to my informants for their sincere co-operation and warm hospitality. I really feel sorry for not being able to record their names.
